PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT REVEALS MANAGEMENT OF CURRENCY AND GOLD CONTROL BY UNITED STATES' BUYING, SELLING

SHARP INCREASE IN EMPLOYMENT IS NOTED BY A.F.L.

1,700,000 Returned to Jobs During August and September, Making Total of 3,600,000 Re-employed Since March.

SHORTER HOURS STILL SAID VITAL

Green Estimated 10,000,000 Remain Jobless and Sees Reduction in Hours as Only Hope for Them.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Organized labor found today that 1,700,000 more men went back to work in August and September, but only reemployed about 3,600,000. The total of the 10,000,000 it said remain unemployed.

Asserting that "most of the effect of the reemployment program has already been felt," William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, added that the accomplishment in August and September were "striking proof of the results of shortening work hours."

"We have made much progress since the March unemployment peak when 13,689,000 were out of work," he said. "By September this army of unemployed had been reduced by 3,600,000. But even so, 10,089,000 are still unemployed."

"Winter is just ahead. What are we to do for these 10,000,000 unemployed in the coming months? The only way we can possibly put them to work is by a further shortening of work hours."

The objective of the A. F. of L. is a 30-hour work week for all industry. Green has told the administration that unless all NRA codes approximate a 30-hour week, organized labor again will seek to push through congress a bill to that end.

His contention, as he expressed it last week at a hearing on the 30-hour rubber code, is that the rubber industry is not the most essential to limit hours to the employment possibilities of the industry.

He also wants higher pay. He said today: "The reemployment of workers is steadily increasing buying power. The dollar increase in total workers' buying power from March to September was 30.7 per cent, but the effect of this gain has been greatly reduced by increased living costs."

"When the rise in prices is taken into consideration, workers' effective buying power has increased by 20.5 per cent."

"Thus, even at today's higher prices, workers' total effective buying power in September was above the March level by $365,000,000 per month, and above August by $67,000,000."

Couple Leap to Death From Steamer's Deck

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 22.—(UP)—A man and woman, tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Snyder, Milwaukee, leaped to their deaths Saturday from the deck of the lake steamer Virginia, en route here from Milwaukee.

Reporting the incident on his arrival here, Captain Frank Coleman said the two came from their stateroom arm in arm. They jumped overboard, he said, and sank before rescue boats could be launched.

The captain said he searched the vicinity for some time without avail. The tentative identification was made through the ship's passenger list.

FARM STRIKE HEAD CLAIMS SUPPORT OF LABOR GROUPS

Milo Reno To Confer With Rail Brotherhood Leader in War for Higher Farm Prices.

DES MOINES, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Milo Reno, head of the National Farmers Holiday Association, today announced that two labor federations had professed their support to his organization in its strike for higher agricultural prices.

The announcement came as association members in 21 states prepared to attempt to cut off the flow of produce to market in carrying out the agricultural strike which Reno and his holiday associates effectuated at noon Saturday.

Reno, in announcing that the two labor federations had pledged their support, expressed pleasure with the progress of the farm holiday and made ready to leave for Chicago for a conference with the leader of a third labor group.

From D. R. Donovan, of Chicago, national secretary of the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers, came a letter assuring Reno that the union expressed pleasure with the full support to the farmers' holiday association in its entirely justified demands as outlined.

"5,000,000 Members." George A. Shaffer, of Denver, chairman of the executive committee of the Technocratic Federation of the World for Industrial Democracy, wired that "the 5,000,000 members of our federation are squarely behind you."

Reno said he would leave tonight for Chicago for a conference tomorrow with A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

"We are ready and happy to meet."

Troops Quell Rioting In Kilkenny Meeting

KILKENNY, Ireland, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Troops were called out tonight to quell rioting at a meeting of the United Irish League, a group of government supporters, in the town of Kilkenny.

The rioting started when three truckloads of the police arrived at the meeting, reinforcing scores of hecklers already busy in the crowd. The troops restored order and the meeting continued.

Hope for Era of Temperance Seen in Prohibition Repeal

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Hope that prohibition repeal would be the dawn of a new era of temperance was expressed in the final report of the Rockefeller liquor survey tonight.

The report recommended abolition of the profit motive in dispensing liquor, restrictions on advertising so as not to stimulate artificial demand, and administration of the regulatory system by a state authority. It opposed a return of the old license system, because "it seems to us inadequate to control the abuses of strong alcoholic beverages."

A firm belief was expressed that any system of control which does not attack the private profit motive in the sale of spirits is merely touching the problem at its fringe.

"Unless we eliminate the incentive behind the stimulation of sale," the report said, "we have not touched the root of the difficulty, and the weeds of abuse will thrive no matter how we hack at the tops."

Asserting the younger generation perhaps has no vivid recollection of the old regime, the survey passed on the warning memories of "a nation fighting for temperate standards against a lawless trade."

"It is scarcely an exaggeration to say," the report continued, "that

STATE BODY HOLDS ROAD PLAN CHANGE UP TO WASHINGTON

Highway Board Will Not Comply With Request for 100 Per Cent Increase in Atlanta Fund.

If Georgia's $10,000,000 highway program is revised so as to increase the allocation for the Atlanta area from $800,000 to $1,200,000, it will be done in Washington and not by the state highway board which prepared the original program, it was learned Sunday.

Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the state highway board, was spending the week-end at his home at Bremen and Governor Eugene Talmadge declined to discuss the federal government's request for a revision, but it was learned authoritatively that the highway board will not accede to the change requested formally Saturday by Thomas H. MacDonald, director of the United States bureau of public roads.

Mr. MacDonald and Secretary of the Interior Ickes, administrator of the federal emergency highway program, have the authority to revise the program to suit themselves and it was understood that if they desired to go over the head of the highway board and request the projects already approved they could do so.

The bureau of public roads asked the revision after Congressman Robert Rameek, of the fifth Georgia district, which includes Atlanta, had complained that Atlanta, which has one-tenth of the state's population and pays a large share of its taxes, receives only a very small percentage of the highway fund.

The formal request of Mr. MacDonald will not reach the highway board until the day the body will be in Atlanta after the chief of the public roads bureau had conferred in Washington with C. N. Snead, of Montgomery, federal engineer in charge of the southeastern district, and it is presumed that Mr. Snead recommended that a revision be requested.

Meanwhile the highway board is preparing today to issue the first call for bids on projects to be launched under the $10,000,000 program. A number of minor projects will be in the Atlanta area and throughout the state. It is known that they do not include those contemplated in Atlanta.

It is expected that the projects on which the board will be asked today involve expenditures of between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

Grau Sends Troops To Cuban Interior

HAVANA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A trainload of troops moved into the interior last night emphasizing the Ramon Grau San Martin government's growing concern over grave unrest in the island.

Strike of railway employees that effectively tied up Havana, Santiago traffic, an army mutiny at Santiago, and the banding of rebels entered throughout the island interior where the chief worries besetting President Grau and his army commander, Sergeant Colonel Fulgencio Batista.

Attempt Made To Kill Peruvian President

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Government authorities announced officially today that assassins had attempted to kill President Oscar Benavides with a bomb.

The official announcement said eight persons were arrested as auto-bombers in the plot which was foiled when they tried to explode the bomb in a highway near Lima. The suspects are to be tried with due process of law in ordinary courts.

U. S. Bank Liquidation Plan To Bring New Flow of Money

Ryburn G. Clay Reveals Details of RFC Program for Releasing Deposits of Closed Financial Institutions.

An immediate and new flow of federal money into the channels of trade was seen Sunday as the deposit liquidation board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation prepared to release deposits of banks closed since January 1, 1933, and made known that later it contemplates similar steps to liquidate banks closed prior to that date.

Plans for the operation of the federal government's new agency were revealed here by Ryburn G. Clay, who is chairman of the special advisory committee for the sixth federal reserve district, and who has named on its committee some of the most prominent banking executives in the southeast.

"Under the plan of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation the government will advance at once to liquidating banks what our committee feels their assets will be worth from three to five years hence," Mr. Clay said. "Our committee members will appoint appraisal boards in their states and it is on the appraisals of these local boards on which the committee will act because it is felt that the appraisal of a particular district knows better than anyone else just how much eventually can be realized on the assets of their closed institutions."

Mr. Clay said he had just received detailed information from the liquidation board, headed by C. B. Merriam, an R. F. C. director, emphasizing that the amount deposited can be paid at once will be governed by the amount of the assets of the closed institutions. The valuation will be fixed over a period of from three to five years. What appears to be necessary for taxes and other expenses of liquidation will be reserved.

Mr. Clay said that today he would forward instructions to members of his committee in order that the local appraisal boards might be set up immediately. General Charles H. Cox, of Atlanta, will be secretary to the Clay committee which will have offices in the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank building. General Cox Saturday announced his resignation as secretary of the Georgia public works advisory commission to accept his new post.

The following widely known bankers will serve with Mr. Clay on the sixth district committee and be directly in charge of the operations of the board in their respective states: J. D. O'Keefe, president of the Whitney National Bank of New Orleans, for Louisiana; J. T. Walker, Jr., president of the Atlantic National bank, of Jacksonville, for Florida; Marshall Hunter, president of the First National Bank & Trust

MILLER FUNERAL IN WASHINGTON TO 14 IN THE SOUTH

Epiphany Episcopal Scene of Services; Body To Rest in Raleigh.

The body of Henry W. Miller, 65, vice president of the Southern railway in charge of operations, who died suddenly of a heart attack in Bermuda last Friday, while vacationing there with Mrs. Miller, will arrive in New York city this morning and be taken to Washington, D. C., for the funeral.

The funeral service will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Epiphany Episcopal church in the national capital and will be broadcast throughout the south. He was transferred to this city from Raleigh in 1910 upon his promotion to the office of assistant general manager of the railway and during a period of ten years resided in a home on Peachtree circle.

Thoroughly conversant with every detail of railroad operation, Mr. Miller also took an active part in civic and social affairs. He and Mrs. Miller were members of All Saints Episcopal church here. They had no children. Mr. Miller was a member of the Piedmont Driving Club, the Capital City Club and the Druid Hills Club.

He was promoted to the position of vice president in charge of operations of the Southern in 1920 and transferred to Washington, which is headquarters of the railway system. Since January 10, 1921, he had served as president of the Georgia, Southern and Florida; the Alabama, Great Southern; the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific; the New Orleans and Northeastern; and affiliated lines.

R. B. Pegram, of 25 Tuxedo road, N. Y., who succeeded Mr. Miller in the Atlanta offices of the Southern, Hugh Couch, of College Park, and other Atlantans who had known Mr. Miller professionally and socially traveled from Atlanta to attend the funeral.

Vitalbhai J. Patel, 60, Succumbs at Geneva

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Vitalbhai J. Patel, former president of the Indian legislative assembly and an intimate friend of the Mahatma Gandhi, died today in a hospital at Geneva of a heart affection. He was 60 years old.

"I give my blessing to all my countrymen and all my friends in India and all over the world," Patel said just before he died.

Before he died, I pray for the early attainment of India's freedom."

From 1923 until 1930, he served as president of the assembly. During those years he earned high praise from the British and Indians alike as a man of strong convictions and strict impartiality.

His period of greatest activity was during the civil disobedience campaign, and he was in prison twice. His health broke and he was released for treatment. He came to America, arriving in New York in September, 1932. Last April he left America for London and once more was taken seriously ill.

He was removed to Vienna and finally to Geneva.

Three Negroes Killed In Automobile Crash

Three negroes were killed and two others may die as the result of an automobile collision Sunday night when the machine in which all five were riding crashed into a parked car at West Hunter and Griffin streets, according to police reports.

The dead were tentatively identified as Mattie L. Cox, of 70 Piedmont street; Ulysses G. Jackson, of 120 Washington street; and Hick Hardy, of 931 Harmon street, Chattanooga, Tenn. The injured, both unconscious at Grady hospital, are Elizabeth Williams, of 263 Cain street, and Dennis Burks, of 310 Auburn avenue. They are in a critical condition, attaches said.

DALADIER WARNS OF NEARING CRISIS IN FRANCO'S STATUS

Gold Is Already Flowing From Bank of France, He Says; Gains Delay in Parliament Test.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Decision on the fate of the French cabinet was postponed at least another day by an agreement of the chamber of deputies to adjourn today.

Premier Daladier's revelation that gold is already flowing from the Bank of France and his warning that inflation threatens the country gained the delay.

The premier indicated he expected an overthrow by saying he had not asked a night session of the chamber because President Lebrun was absent from Paris. Daladier said he stood firmly on a program which would stand or fall on the complete balance of the budget.

The socialists hesitated to overthrow the government until the last hope of a compromise was exhausted and adjournment of the chamber came after a four-hour session.

The franc's jeopardy was emphasized by Daladier yesterday evening when he told the radical socialists: "Only yesterday 200,000,000 gold francs were withdrawn from the Bank of France."

He said foreigners were already speculating against the franc. "Is there a single Frenchman, whatever his politics," asked the premier, "who is not reliving the days of 1926?"—when the franc sank to a value of 50 to the dollar.

The government fears a speculative raid on the franc. Georges Bonnet, minister of finance, intimated, saying: "A grave uncertainty hangs over our franc" and "France is at the crossroads."

Burglars and Bandits Busy Saturday Night

Burglars and holdup men were busy in Atlanta Saturday night and Sunday morning. Four robberies were reported to police.

A. B. Morris, of 722 Church street, Ashburn, was held up at Walton and Marietta streets and robbed of $110 in cash and a suitcase containing clothing, he told police. He said three white men forced him to turn over his property at the point of a gun. He furnished police with the names of the robbers.

Two negro men who stopped him on the pretext of borrowing a cigarette robbed Alfred E. Hyde, of Houston, Texas, of $7 in cash and personal belongings early Sunday morning in West End. He reported.

The negroes were armed. They took a gold-framed picture of his mother also, he said.

The robbers looted the Candler park golf clubhouse of $90 in cash some time during the night, the manager told police Sunday morning. Entrance was gained through the basement after an effort to force an opening in the roof had failed.

Two watches and several rings and other jewelry were stolen from the Chase National bank in the early morning. The robbery was reported to police.

Brest-Litovsk Treaty Marks Break of Bolsheviks and U. S.

(This is the first of three articles on soviet-American relations. It portrays pertinent events leading up to President Roosevelt's announcement of negotiations about American recognition of the U. S. S. R.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The early days of March, 1918, were memorable in Moscow.

The Bolsheviks had overthrown the Kerensky provisional regime and founded the soviet union—a communist government.

The soviet government in February, had repudiated the Russian debt. Creditor nations were deeply concerned.

The German offensive on the eastern front went forward. The soviet government declared that it was neutral. It wanted peace—almost at any price.

Then, on March 3—in the west Russian town of Brest-Litovsk, with the spearhead of the Kaiser's army thrust at them—the soviet signed the treaty of peace with Germany.

Allied nations were in consternation. They had depended on the Russian participation in the east to keep the Germans from concentrating on the western front.

SOVIET POSITION IN TALK WITH J. S. REMAINS MYSTERY

Litvinoff and Superiors Give No Hint of Moscow's Attitude on Debts or Other Matters.

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Regardless of the firm assurance with which Maxim Litvinoff's fellow countrymen expect him to return from Washington with the long-desired mandate of recognition, it became plain today that only those in the highest councils of the soviet knew what actual he would take in conversations with President Roosevelt.

The mighty little commissar of foreign affairs whose trip to America this first will cap a year of diplomatic successes in Europe definitely and finally refused to make a statement to American newspaper correspondents before he leaves Tuesday for Le Havre, France. He will embark probably Thursday from the French port.

Mr. Litvinoff conveyed his refusal through the press section of the foreign office, which explained it was felt advisable here not to discuss the subject publicly at this juncture.

General opinion in the soviet, however, seems to indicate that formal diplomatic recognition is a foregone conclusion barring some unforeseen and serious development.

A sign of the assurance with which a soviet-American rapprochement is regarded was the rise in value of the American dollar on local exchange. On the day before the exchange of messages was made public by the presidents the price of the dollar was 1 rouble 24 kopeks. Overnight it rose to 1 rouble 37 kopeks, as compared with a parity of 1 rouble 94 kopeks.

It was regarded here, as beyond doubt that M. Litvinoff will be prepared to give President Roosevelt whatever assurances and guarantees he requires for the soviet's recognition of the soviet government.

Cuban Loans by Chase To Be Studied Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Public works loans to Cuba by the Chase National bank in effect will be examined tomorrow by the senate banking committee as the aftermath to an angry denial by Winthrop W. Aldrich, Chase president, of charges of graft and scandal.

Aldrich, aroused by a newspaper story that the bank sought to hush up an inquiry into its Cuban loans, insisted upon the investigation.

Chairman Fletcher, democrat, Florida, thereupon called a special session of his committee for tomorrow to go into the advances, which aggregated approximately $100,000,000.

Aldrich told the committee the money was spent for public works, and that the bank had no direct involvement. The bulk of the money involved was lent to the government.

PROMISES BOOST IN FARM PRICES AND DEFENDS NRA

President, in Address to Nation, Tells of Recovery Policies With Firm Assertion That 'We Are on Our Way.'

RFC WILL BUY YELLOW METAL

Says Dollar Will Be Revalued After Restoration of Price Level; 'Chiselers' Rapped.

(Text of Address in Page Eight.) WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight announced a government market for gold and eventual "revaluation" of the dollar in a talk to the nation from the White House in which he gave assurance that "we are on our way and headed in the right direction."

Placing his full confidence behind the recovery campaign, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed his monetary policies, including a decision to buy or sell gold in the world market as a step toward "managed currency."

He authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "to buy gold newly mined in the United States."

"When we have restored the price level," he said, "we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change in purchasing and debt paying power during the succeeding generations."

Without direct reference to the situation in the Midwest farm belt, he assured that farm prices are going to be raised and "if we cannot do this one way we will do it another, but do it, we will."

NRA and noted that "in the vast majority of cases, in the vast majority of localities—that the NRA has been given support in unstinted measure."

The president's address was broadcast over nationwide hook-ups of the National and Columbia systems.

He spoke from the study of the White House, before a circle of his recovery chieftains. The president in calm, deliberate expression talked to the nation about every phase of the recovery administration and concluded:

"Our troubles will not be over tomorrow, but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

Mr. Roosevelt put the operation of the government's market for gold under the administration of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Whenever necessary to end in view," he disclosed, "we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market."

"This is a policy and not an expedient. It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move towards a managed currency."

"My aim in taking this step is to

EXTENSION SEEN OF ARMS RECESS

Further Adjournment
To Be Found Necessary,
Delegates Believe.

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—(UP)—A long adjournment of the preliminary disarmament conference, probably until January at the earliest, was predicted tonight as delegates prepared for meetings this week and reconvening of the arms sessions on Thursday.

Delegates felt further adjournment of the arms conference would be found necessary. Most of them feared a world armaments race if the parity should adjourn sine die.

They also continued to nurse the hope that eventually Germany will return to the arms meetings and the League of Nations. Her withdrawal precipitated the present crisis.

However, negotiations designed to bring Germany back into the conference cannot be started until after the German elections on November 12, it was agreed.

Members of the United States delegation indicated they favored a shorter adjournment, preferably only over the German elections. Norman Davis, chief delegate, probably will return to Washington if the conference quits until January, and members of the delegation did not deny the possibility that he would return.

In any case, observers consider that the arms parity will be thoroughly embalmed when the delegates get together again Thursday—but the funeral cannot be held until the powers are agreed on a joint attitude in the event that Germany, first, refuses to return or to accept a majority arms control convention; or second, that she starts to rearm, in violation of the treaty of Versailles.

PEACE WITH HONOR SET AS GOAL OF HITLER

REGENSBURG, Germany, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler, making his first speech directly to the public since Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations, was tumultuously cheered here today as he criticized 100 per cent patriotism and reiterated Germany's desire to live peacefully but on equality with the rest of the world.

The occasion for his speech was an assembly of storm troops at Germany's hall of fame in the countryside near Kehlheim, Bavaria. A tremendous ovation greeted the chancellor when he went on the speakers' platform.

"We who experienced four and a half years of war," declared Hitler, "are best qualified to know its terrors. We also are best qualified to understand the difference between burrah patriotism and the genuine spirit of unity."

He was interrupted by wild cheers when he said the world was not to interfere with Germany.

"Our goal," said Hitler, "is to make the nation happy again by getting it its daily bread—a tremendous job—and in pursuit of that job the world is to let us alone."

"We want peace but not dishonor. We tell the world frankly: 'If you want to see us in international conferences, if you want to have us in your League of Nations, we will participate only when you recognize us as a nation; we are ready at any time to sign treaties if these can be fulfilled and if they are just; but pacts that neither can be fulfilled nor are honorable we will not sign.'"

The rose in Hitler's hand when he added: "We will not co-operate in signing treaties."

Price of Accident Protection Is Within Reach of Everybody

Does the traffic accident wave actually threaten you personally? Is it gaining mightily in volume? For answer, read the headlines which appear almost daily in The Atlanta Constitution and especially on Monday mornings giving account of the traffic accidents throughout the state and south.

"Twenty-seven persons dead after accidents in Dixie states."

This is a headline quoted from The Constitution of some Mondays ago. Here is proof enough to convince the most skeptical—warning enough to arouse the most sluggish.

Insure yourself. Insure now! Do not put it off another day!

The insurance offered you through the Atlanta Constitution is issued by The North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. This company, during the last several years, has paid to Constitution subscribers and members of their families over $160,000.

The insurance is offered to subscribers and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription.

In sending application for insurance the applicant must give full name, full age and occupation and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

FARM STRIKE HEAD CLAIMS SUPPORT OF LABOR GROUPS

with labor and business at their invitation," Reno asserted.

He announced that the farm credit administration in Washington had established farm debt conciliation committees in 16 states evoked some comment.

The committees, named by state governors, to assist in bringing about voluntary compromises between farmer and creditor are similar to councils of defense organized by the holiday association.

In Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota many of the holiday councils have been functioning for the past year in attempting to settle farm mortgage foreclosure actions by arbitration. Continuation of such councils has been urged by Reno as an important step in the farm strike.

Reno saw indications of full support from Iowa farmers and businessmen today in a report from Shelby county, in the Omaha marketing area, in which elevator and creamery operators and merchants were joining in the strike.

County holiday leaders were canvassing every township in an attempt to get all farmers to withhold products from the markets tomorrow and to obtain assurance from middlemen that they will refuse to purchase produce during the strike.

Thus far, possible effect of the strike has been confined to speculation. In as much as noon Saturday marked inauguration of the strike as well as the closing hour at most marketing centers, receipts sustained no unprecedented drop.

Receipts at principal markets this week and next, holiday leaders assert, will be the first indication of the strike's effectiveness.

GOVERNOR BLACKWOOD SENDS SPECIAL OFFICERS

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Governor Blackwood said tonight approximately 30 special officers were on duty in the Horse Creek valley, Aiken county, tomorrow as a "precaution" against any possible textile disorder.

The governor dispatched 12 state highway patrolmen to reinforce eight sent Friday when the plants of the Loring Mills at Bath and Clearwater closed down in the Horse Creek valley. Aiken county sheriff was authorized to swear in special officers to bring the total to "around 30."

The governor also said he might ask the management of the two textile plants to defer reopening them until an agent of the national labor board arrives there at 4 p. m. tomorrow. Announcement had been made that the plants would resume operation tomorrow morning.

JOBLESS INSURANCE TO BE DISCUSSED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—State officials, economists and labor leaders today were called by Secretary Perkins to confer here next Wednesday with Sir William Beveridge on unemployment insurance.

The labor secretary, in announcing the session, made clear it would be only for a discussion with the British expert on methods of dealing with unemployment.

Miss Perkins called attention to Wisconsin's law for unemployment reserves, adding "there has been a growing movement in many other states in recent years favoring legislation along such insurance lines."

with the possibility of statewide bond-dry prohibition.

"Restrictive laws which cannot be enforced achieve success only on paper," they explained. "More than that, they defeat their fundamental purpose."

With respect to a system of control, the report cautioned against any system "which no longer represents the prevalent ideas and attitude of the community."

"Our legal prescriptions and formulas must be living conceptions capable of growing as we grow," the report said.

"In the last analysis there is but one fundamental rule to be followed—and all other rules are corollaries: If the new system is not rooted in what the people of each state sincerely desire at this moment, it makes no difference how logical and complete it may appear as a statute—it cannot succeed."

"But unless we mistake the desire and temper of public opinion there is no disposition to allow the return of old laws. A new spirit is in the air—a new belief in the power of human intelligence to plan a social order in the interests of a snarer and more balanced life."

NRA GROUP USES 13-MONTH YEAR IN GATHERING DATA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The economic research division of NRA has recommended a 13-month calendar for statistical purposes to NRA authorities and to business and some experts see its general adoption within a relatively short time.

A copy of forms, suggesting the arrangement of statistics, which have been sent to code authorities, states: "Some of the code's require reporting every four weeks and some of them require reporting by the month. It would be desirable to have all reports cover uniform periods."

"Serious consideration is being given to the possibility of amending all requirements so that reports may be made at four week intervals, thereby avoiding adjustments of data in connection with monthly reports."

"If all industry would go on a 13-month basis with four weeks in each fiscal period it would greatly simplify all statistical reporting and accounting."

"With this in mind, this set of forms is developed so that each question (with two exceptions), covers a four-week period."

TROOPS ARE ASKED TO FIGHT OUTLAWS

Northern Indiana Menaced by Roving Band of Escaped Convicts.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22.—(UP)—A roving band of outlaws menaced Indiana tonight to such an extent that one sheriff asked the aid of national guardsmen in protecting residents of his county.

The band is believed to include five men who escaped recently from the Michigan City penitentiary: John Chilling, who was taken from the Lima (Ohio) jail by bandits who killed the sheriff; Harry Copeland, a parolee convict, and possibly several others.

The outlaws are known to be armed with revolvers, bombs, shotguns, machine guns and many rounds of ammunition, all stolen in recent raids on jails and prisons.

The same constitutional limitations which thus far have prevented Georgia from clearing in the great public works program unless projects are covered with collateral, may limit Georgia's participation in the bank program, Mr. Clay said.

He added, however, that he considered a plan could be worked out whereby the state could obtain the same benefits as other states.

McKEE AND TAMMANY 'AGREEMENT' CHARGED

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Existence of a "tacit agreement" between Tammany Hall and Joseph V. McKee, independent candidate for mayor, was charged in a speech today by Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the fusion nominee.

LaGuardia, who in turn was accused by the McKee forces of taking part in a republican effort to "defeat" President Roosevelt and Governor Lehman, described the campaign as "a fight between the people and the politicians."

"There is general agreement among students of politics and observers of Tammany," he said, "that there is a tacit agreement between these factions and that some adjustment will be made in the event that either should be successful."

LaGuardia pledged himself to reduce the cost of food and eliminate racketeering by setting up a scientific system of distribution and reorganizing the department of markets.

Precautions against stuffy indoor living do not go far enough

Bad weather and indoor living are not the only hazards you have to guard against. You must build up your resistance as well!

Furthermore, advance protection of physical comfort and well being by building up one's physical forces is becoming almost as important as treatment after you're ill.

And one way of bringing this about is to obtain an abundance of the factors which contribute to good resistance!

Of resistance-building Vitamin A is a famous scientist says, "It helps to maintain the first line of defense against the invasion of bacteria."

How important for any one susceptible to winter ills to obtain an abundance every day!

This can easily be done with a vitamin concentrate—Squibb Adex Tablets—10 D!

Each Adex tablet provides 1000 units of Vitamin A, and 2450 units of the other factor found in halibut and cod-liver oils and Viosterol—sunshine Vitamin D!

They are the only concentrate of vitamins on the market made from these three resistance-building sources!

Begin now to take them every day! At any reliable drug store.

Cicero A. Peek Dies In Vicksburg, Miss.

Cicero Augustus Peek, 70 years of age, widely known salesman who had resided in Atlanta many years, died early Sunday in the Vicksburg sanitarium at Vicksburg, Miss., after an illness of two months. He was a native of Philomath, Ga., and traveled for Surplus Dunn & Co., New York hardware firm.

Mr. Peek came to Atlanta in 1884, and for several years was associated with the Atlanta Supply Company. He was a charter member and past grand master of the Gate City lodge of Masons, and had served as a director of the Shrine.

Funeral services will be held in Athens, Ga., at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Surviving Mr. Peek are two sisters, Mrs. Ella Peek Arnold, of Philomath, and Miss Marie A. Peek, of Atlanta, and three brothers, William T. of Athens; Edward D. of Atlanta, and John S. D. Peek, of Philomath.

SOVIET POSITION IN TALK WITH U. S. REMAINS MYSTERY

try he represents. Soviet officials had wanted American recognition too long and has been disappointed too many times to fail to meet any reasonable demands from Washington.

At the same time M. Litvinoff will not permit the United States to forget that this country is now one of the world powers which will not submit to any conditions it might regard as demeaning its dignity.

Debts.

With regard to debts, it is considered probable that Litvinoff may propose a loan or long-term credit arrangement, in return for which some basis for settlement may be reached on the debts to the United States incurred by the czarist regime and repudiated after the revolution. It is suggested that nationalized American property in Russia may be treated on somewhat the same basis, in which case the envoy may raise the question of soviet counter-claims on the United States for her part in the revolutionary intervention.

But whatever form the discussions take they are expected to be based on broad general terms of policy, details of which will be left to future negotiations. It is felt here that Litvinoff's talks with Roosevelt will not be of long duration.

The question of communist propaganda is considered here as one of the most easily disposed of in the whole category. Its treatment should be based on the precedent followed in soviet recognition treaties with other countries, such as England, Japan, France and Italy.

ATLANTA SOCIAL WORK CONFERENCE TO MEET

Welfare Council Sponsors
Lectures at Y. M. C. A.
Gymnasium.

The public is invited to attend the first annual Atlanta conference on social work which will be convened at 8 o'clock this evening in the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association at 37 Auburn avenue under sponsorship of the Social Welfare Council.

Dr. David Marx will address the opening meeting on the topic, "Individual Responsibility in Community Life."

Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College, is president of the conference, and Lewis D. Sharp is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

"The Challenge of Leisure" will be the theme of a meeting Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock, over which Kendall Weisiger will preside. Miss Mae Hawes and Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools in Fulton county, will speak. In the afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, the conference will consider the health needs of the community. Mrs. J. Bonar White will preside and health officers of Fulton and DeKalb counties will be heard. Others scheduled to participate in the discussion are Dr. L. D. Bristol, health director of the American University; Miss Gay B. Shepperson, executive secretary of the Georgia relief commission, and Miss Ernestine McGill, instructor of case work in the Atlanta School of Social Work.

Most easily disposed of in the whole category. Its treatment should be based on the precedent followed in soviet recognition treaties with other countries, such as England, Japan, France and Italy.

LINDY TO RETURN TO AIRWAYS TODAY

Colonel and His Lady Refuse To Say Where They Are Going.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Oct. 22.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh planned tonight to take off at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow from Woolston airport for an unrevealed destination.

They refused to discuss their plans or to comment on unconfirmed rumors that they would fly back to the United States by a southern Atlantic route or retrace their northern route, possibly starting from some Scandinavian point.

The Lindberghs did not go to the docks to say farewell to Aubrey Niel Morgan and his wife, the former Elisabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister, when they arrived from Cardiff to sail on the Europa. Mrs. Morgan is reported to be returning to the United States for her health.

The belief that the Lindberghs are planning a long air journey was strengthened by the fact that their plane has been overhauled since its arrival in England. Colonel Lindbergh drove over from Botley Village, where he and his wife stayed overnight, to the airfield this morning. There he supervised the launching of the plane and the filling of its gasoline tanks.

Half an hour afterward the colonel said that because of rain and poor visibility flying was out of the question today. Then he said he would start at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

VIENNA LAD, HUNTING, IS KILLED BY FRIEND

MILLEDGEVILLE HEARS DR. WELTNER SPEAK

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 22.—Dr. Philip Weltner, chancellor of the university system of Georgia, spoke to the faculty and student body here in the Richard B. Russell auditorium of the Georgia State College for Women Saturday morning.

Dr. Weltner stated that for every one person going to college in Georgia there were 250 deprived of such an opportunity and declared in part, "I cannot do everything. I can do something. That I can I ought to do. By the grace of God I'll do it."

11. Warehouses.—Commodity Credit Corporation will accept warehouse receipts as collateral to notes on C. C. C. form A covering cotton issued by any warehouse, licensed under the laws of any state of the United States, and such warehouses as may be approved by the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of the district in which such warehouse is located.

12. Warehouse Receipts.—Only negotiable warehouse receipts, properly assigned by an indorser in blank so as to vest title in the holders, issued by warehousemen who are not owners of the cotton, will be acceptable. They must set out in their written or printed terms a description by marks and weight of the bale or bales represented thereby, and all other facts and statements required to be stated in the written or printed terms of a warehouse receipt under the provisions of Section 2 of the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act.

13. Warehouse Charges.—The warehouseman's charges are limited and his obligations defined by the form of warehouseman's certificate and waiver provided in paragraph 1 of the loan agreement. This should be read carefully and must be executed by the warehouseman issuing the cotton warehouse receipts pledged as collateral to the producer's note.

14. Insurance.—Holders of notes desiring insurance coverage until such time as the notes are sold to Commodity Credit Corporation, should obtain such coverage at their own expense. Upon purchase by Commodity Credit Corporation, an allowance will be made to cover insurance of 5 cents per bale of cotton for each month, or part thereof, from the respective dates of the producer's notes to the first day of the month of purchase. Producers to whom loans are made are expected to obtain, at their own expense, any insurance coverage desired in respect to their interest or equity in the pledged cotton.

15. Federal Reserve Banks.—The federal reserve banks and branches thereof will act as agents of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in making disbursements on eligible paper approved by the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in that district. Such notes, together with the warehouse receipts securing the same, will be held by the federal reserve banks as security for the loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to Commodity Credit Corporation.

Upon the approval of the documents by the federal reserve banks, the federal reserve banks or branches thereof are authorized to make payment thereon to the lending agency or the producer.

16. How Money Is To Be Obtained From the Commodity Credit Corporation.—Where the loan is to be made by Commodity Credit Corporation, the producer, the producer's direct (C. C. C. form B) is to be completed by the producer and presented to the federal reserve bank by mail with eligible paper at the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation serving the district in which the producer resides. A copy of this letter is to be retained by the producer as a memorandum. Upon approval of the documents, payment will be made pursuant to the letter.

Where the letter and documents are presented by the producer in person, the certificate printed at the bottom of the letter must be executed, provided the producer can furnish evidence satisfactory to the agency manager as to his identity.

Lending agencies desirous of selling eligible paper to Commodity Credit Corporation will follow the same procedure except that the lending agency's letter (C. C. C. form B) will be used. It must be completed in accordance with the instructions printed thereon.

17. Loan Agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.—The agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation previously referred to herein are located in the following cities: Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Charlotte, N. C.; Chicago, Ill.; Dallas, Texas; El Paso, Texas; Houston, Texas; Jacksonville, Fla.; Little Rock, Ark.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Memphis, Tenn.; Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; New York, N. Y.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Richmond, Va.; St. Louis, Mo.; San Antonio, Texas; San Francisco, Calif.

The managers of said loan agencies have been directed by Reconstruction Finance Corporation to examine and approve all documents tendered to Community Credit Corporation as security for loans and arrange for payments of proceeds through the federal reserve banks or branches thereof situated in the city where the loan agency is located.

18. Release of Collateral.—If the producer's note was made payable directly to Commodity Credit Corporation and he desires to obtain the return of the note and the release of the collateral upon payment, he should approach the federal reserve bank or branch thereof serving the district in which he resides. If his note was made payable to a payee other than Commodity Credit Corporation, the producer should notify the payee named therein. Warehouse receipts representing cotton held by the Commodity Credit Corporation will be released by the federal reserve bank or branch thereof holding the receipts upon payment of the note, and proper charges. Upon written request of the producer, the notes, receipts and warehouse receipts will be forwarded to an approved bank, to be released to the producer or his agent or the payee against payment. Where receipts are transmitted to a bank they will be sent, with a request to return them to the sender, if payment and release are not effected within 15 days. All charges and expenses of the bank are to be paid by the producer.

Cotton Loan Provisions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(P)—Thousands of forms necessary for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's cotton loan program have been mailed to county extension agents and financial agencies in the south and farm adjustment officials and county acting lending officials begin early this week.

Along with the loan agreements went a detailed list of regulations under which the loans will be made.

The text of the regulations follows: The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has extended to the Commodity Credit Corporation a line of credit for the purpose of enabling Commodity Credit Corporation to make loans and/or purchase paper of producers of cotton, secured by pledge of cotton warehouse receipts. These instructions state the requirements with reference to making such loans and the purchase of such paper.

1. Definitions.—As used in these instructions, unless the context otherwise requires, the following terms will be construed respectively to mean:

(A) Producer.—Any person, partnership, association, or corporation owning or acquiring cotton either as landowner, landlord, or tenant.

(B) Eligible Cotton.—Cotton produced in 1933, classed low middling or better in grade, the beneficial title to which is and always has been in the producer.

(C) Lending Agency.—Any bank, cooperative marketing association, or other corporation, partnership, association or person, lending money to producers on eligible cotton warehouse receipts, upon C. C. C. form A. (A loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is not included within this definition.)

(D) Eligible Paper.—Notes of producers with the following characteristics: (1) Issued by a producer (C. C. C. form A) or any form hereafter approved by Commodity Credit Corporation.

(2) Form.—The following documents must be delivered in connection with every loan made or note purchased by Commodity Credit Corporation: (A) Note of producer (C. C. C. form A).

(B) Loan agreement (C. C. C. form A).

(C) Warehouse receipts issued by approved warehousemen, together with certificate of the warehouseman or warehousemen issuing said receipts, as hereinafter prescribed.

(D) Producer's letter of transmittal (C. C. C. form B), or lending agency's letter of transmittal (C. C. C. form C).

3. Amount.—Loans to producers will be made by the lending agency or by Commodity Credit Corporation on the basis of 10 cents per pound for eligible cotton produced in 1933, classed low middling or better in grade and 7-8 inch or better in staple, and 8 cents per pound for such cotton classed as low middling or better in staple and below 7-8 inch in staple.

4. Time and Manner of Loans and Purchase.—Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase eligible paper at par with accrued interest at the rate of 4 per cent per month to the date of payment of the purchase price. Commodity Credit Corporation will make loans direct to producers and will purchase eligible paper from lending agencies tendered at any hereinbefore designated loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at any time prior to July 1, 1934. All producers' notes must mature on or before July 31, 1934.

5. Direct Loans.—It is contemplated that producers will ordinarily obtain loans from a local bank or other lending agency which, in turn, may sell the paper evidencing such loans to Commodity Credit Corporation. Arrangements, however, have been made for making direct loans to producers. In such cases the note must be made payable to Commodity Credit Corporation and the proceeds delivered to the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation serving the district in which the producer resides. Producers for direct loans tendered by mail, in person or otherwise must be accompanied by a letter of transmittal on C. C. C. form B. Upon delivery of all necessary documents proper to the interest or equity in the pledged cotton, approval of the loan by the manager of the loan agency payment will be made to the producer.

6. Preparation of Documents.—A producer desiring a loan upon eligible cotton may obtain the necessary forms from any county extension agent in the cotton-producing areas, also from the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation serving the territory in which the producer lives or lending agency is located. A list of such loan agencies appears on Page 3 of these instructions. Such forms may also be obtained from Commodity Credit Corporation, care Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Washington, D. C. The forms are identified and no reprints or substitutes may be used.

If a producer is a member of a co-operating marketing association, he may negotiate his loan through such association. All blanks in such notes and loan agreement must be filled in with ink or typewriter in the manner indicated therein and no documents containing alterations, erasures or corrections will be accepted by Commodity Credit Corporation or Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Only the original copy of the note and loan agreement marked "original" will be executed; the colored copy marked "duplicate" is to be retained by the producer.

7. Liability of Producer.—If the producer complies with the terms of the loan agreement he will not be personally liable for any deficiency upon the note and loan agreement govern the liability of the producer and should be read carefully.

8. Lending Agency.—The lending agency may advance the notes of producers with the following conditions: (1) The note must be executed by the producer and signed by the lender. (2) The note must be accompanied by the warehouse receipts as security for the loan. (3) The note must be accompanied by the warehouse receipts as security for the loan.

9. Cotton For Sale.—The producer may list the pledged cotton for sale with any factor, broker, co-operative marketing association, commission merchant, or other selling agency. The commission or selling service may be in such amount as is agreed upon between the producer and such selling agency, except that if the sale is made while the note is in default the commission paid such selling agency shall not exceed eighty-five (85) cents per bale or 2 per cent of the gross sale price, whichever is less. The holder of the note may, at any time before or after maturity, terminate the agreement with such selling agency for the sale of said cotton upon payment to the agency of the sum of thirty-five (35) cents per bale for unsold cotton, which shall be in full for all services rendered. An original or certified copy of the contract of any such listing of cotton for sale, with a consent to these limitations, signed by the producer and the agency, must accompany the note of the producer, and the services must include, without limitation, all customary services of marketing and factoring, including listing, sampling, classing, showing, selling, and accounting to the holder of the note.

10. Liens.—All cotton tendered to Commodity Credit Corporation must be free and clear of all liens except in favor of the lender. The names of the holders of all existing liens on the pledged cotton shall be listed in the space provided therefor in the loan agreement. The names of the holders of all existing liens on the pledged cotton shall be listed in the space provided therefor in the loan agreement. If a lienholder has been paid the full amount of his lien prior to the execution of the note and loan agreement, his name need not be listed even though the lien, if one of record, has not been released of record. The waiver and consent to the pledge of the cotton and the payment of the proceeds of the sale of the cotton solely to the producer as contained in paragraph 2 of the loan agreement must be signed personally by all lienholders listed or by their agents whose names are listed in the space provided therefor in the loan agreement. If the lienholders are individuals or if corporations are designated officers thereof customarily authorized to execute such instruments in which case the executed instrument need not be attached. The Farm Credit Administration has designated a representative in each cotton-producing county, who has been instructed as to the manner of waiving liens held by any federal agency under the supervision of the farm credit administration, except Joint Stock Land Banks. Where a federal agency is listed as a lienholder the lending agency should contact such representative who may be reached through the county extension agent of the county in which the pledged cotton was grown.

11. Warehouses.—Commodity Credit Corporation will accept warehouse receipts as collateral to notes on C. C. C. form A covering cotton issued by any warehouse, licensed under the laws of any state of the United States, and such warehouses as may be approved by the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of the district in which such warehouse is located.

12. Warehouse Receipts.—Only negotiable warehouse receipts, properly assigned by an indorser in blank so as to vest title in the holders, issued by warehousemen who are not owners of the cotton, will be acceptable. They must set out in their written or printed terms a description by marks and weight of the bale or bales represented thereby, and all other facts and statements required to be stated in the written or printed terms of a warehouse receipt under the provisions of Section 2 of the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act.

13. Warehouse Charges.—The warehouseman's charges are limited and his obligations defined by the form of warehouseman's certificate and waiver provided in paragraph 1 of the loan agreement. This should be read carefully and must be executed by the warehouseman issuing the cotton warehouse receipts pledged as collateral to the producer's note.

14. Insurance.—Holders of notes desiring insurance coverage until such time as the notes are sold to Commodity Credit Corporation, should obtain such coverage at their own expense. Upon purchase by Commodity Credit Corporation, an allowance will be made to cover insurance of 5 cents per bale of cotton for each month, or part thereof, from the respective dates of the producer's notes to the first day of the month of purchase. Producers to whom loans are made are expected to obtain, at their own expense, any insurance coverage desired in respect to their interest or equity in the pledged cotton.

15. Federal Reserve Banks.—The federal reserve banks and branches thereof will act as agents of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in making disbursements on eligible paper approved by the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in that district. Such notes, together with the warehouse receipts securing the same, will be held by the federal reserve banks as security for the loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to Commodity Credit Corporation.

Upon the approval of the documents by the federal reserve banks, the federal reserve banks or branches thereof are authorized to make payment thereon to the lending agency or the producer.

16. How Money Is To Be Obtained From the Commodity Credit Corporation.—Where the loan is to be made by Commodity Credit Corporation, the producer, the producer's direct (C. C. C. form B) is to be completed by the producer and presented to the federal reserve bank by mail with eligible paper at the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation serving the district in which the producer resides. A copy of this letter is to be retained by the producer as a memorandum. Upon approval of the documents, payment will be made pursuant to the letter.

Where the letter and documents are presented by the producer in person, the certificate printed at the bottom of the letter must be executed, provided the producer can furnish evidence satisfactory to the agency manager as to his identity.

Lending agencies desirous of selling eligible paper to Commodity Credit Corporation will follow the same procedure except that the lending agency's letter (C. C. C. form B) will be used. It must be completed in accordance with the instructions printed thereon.

17. Loan Agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.—The agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation previously referred to herein are located in the following cities: Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Charlotte, N. C.; Chicago, Ill.; Dallas, Texas; El Paso, Texas; Houston, Texas; Jacksonville, Fla.; Little Rock, Ark.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Memphis, Tenn.; Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; New York, N. Y.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Richmond, Va.; St. Louis, Mo.; San Antonio, Texas; San Francisco, Calif.

The managers of said loan agencies have been directed by Reconstruction Finance Corporation to examine and approve all documents tendered to Community Credit Corporation as security for loans and arrange for payments of proceeds through the federal reserve banks or branches thereof situated in the city where the loan agency is located.

18. Release of Collateral.—If the producer's note was made payable directly to Commodity Credit Corporation and he desires to obtain the return of the note and the release of the collateral upon payment, he should approach the federal reserve bank or branch thereof serving the district in which he resides. If his note was made payable to a payee other than Commodity Credit Corporation, the producer should notify the payee named therein. Warehouse receipts representing cotton held by the Commodity Credit Corporation will be released by the federal reserve bank or branch thereof holding the receipts upon payment of the note, and proper charges. Upon written request of the producer, the notes, receipts and warehouse receipts will be forwarded to an approved bank, to be released to the producer or his agent or the payee against payment. Where receipts are transmitted to a bank they will be sent, with a request to return them to the sender, if payment and release are not effected within 15 days. All charges and expenses of the bank are to be paid by the producer.

19. Release of Collateral.—If the producer's note was made payable directly to Commodity Credit Corporation and he desires to obtain the return of the note and the release of the collateral upon payment, he should approach the federal reserve bank or branch thereof serving the district in which he resides. If his note was made payable to a payee other than Commodity Credit Corporation, the producer should notify the payee named therein. A ROUTE TO LOWER TAXES.

General indorsement is being given by the press of Georgia, both daily and weekly, to the recommendation of the County Officers' Association, at its annual meeting some weeks ago in Augusta, that the county governments of the state adopt more modern and uniform methods of accounting.

Typical of these comments is the following expression appearing in a recent issue of the Crawfordville Advocate-Democrat:

County officials should keep complete and up-to-the-minute records of all transactions concerning county affairs in order that information concerning the county's financial condition be immediately available at all times. County officials of many counties no doubt are doing this now, but in many of the smaller counties this is not true. Methods of bookkeeping in many of the smaller counties are obsolete, and should be replaced by new and up-to-date methods. In our own county, for instance, the method is obsolete and out of date, and should be replaced with up-to-date methods. We understand our commissioners are preparing to do this, for which they are to be commended. They certainly can render the county no better service, and the Advocate-Democrat sincerely hopes they will not delay putting new and up-to-date methods into effect.

There is no excuse for the failure of many county administrations to install accounting systems devised along up-to-date lines and under which not only the county officials, but any taxpayer, could be acquainted quickly and clearly with the financial condition of the county.

In many counties in the state the bookkeeping methods are so antiquated that not only is this not possible, but some counties are actually in default of the interest and principal of their bonded indebtedness because of failure to set up necessary sinking funds and of accounting systems that would warn them of the impending default.

There is no excuse for this, and it can be ascribed only to inefficient and bad management of public affairs.

It is one of the chief reasons for the inequality of county tax rates in Georgia, which finds some counties with rates only four or three times higher than other counties of similar wealth and population.

The tabulation of county tax rates recently compiled by Comptroller-General Harrison gives a range in taxation that can result only from improper conduct of public business and that would not be allowed if the overtaxed counties had a system of bookkeeping by which every taxpayer could find out for himself where the blame lies.

Schley county has a rate of 3 mills, having this year effected a reduction from 5 mills. Emanuel county, another agricultural county, but a larger one, this year has cut its tax rate from 15 to 5 mills.

It is difficult to understand how the people of other counties, similar in every respect to these well-managed counties, should continue to put up with the poor management that has run their tax rates 20 and 25 mills on the dollar. Crisp has an even higher rate of 26 mills, largely due to its investment in a local power plant, an experiment that seems to have proven more of a burden than a benefit.

Fulton county makes a fine showing, with its rate of 9.5 mills materially below the average for the state, and for the other big-city counties, Chatham having a rate of 12.5, Bibb of 18 and Floyd of 15 mills.

Such a wide variation of tax rates demonstrates the need for better administration and accounting in many of the counties of the state, and, of even more importance, of a constitutional limitation on county taxation, as there now is on the state ad valorem tax.

Not until such a limit is put to the amount of taxation that inefficient or unwise public officials can squeeze out of the taxpayers to make up for their own administrative shortcomings will a permanent solution be found to the problem of the over-heavy cost of local government under which Georgia is now suffering.

That a limit on county taxation can be safely imposed without danger of the impairment of public service is shown by the experience of the state government under the low limit placed on the ad valorem tax.

When the ad valorem tax limitation was set years ago grave doubt was felt as to whether the state government could be properly operated on the basis of 5 five mills tax. Not only has this been successfully accomplished, but the rate has now been reduced to four mills—while the county rates, without constitutional limitation, have soared sky high.

The adoption by every county in the state of a uniform and modern system of accounting would be a major step towards bringing down unreasonably high local taxes. If put under the wise direction of State Auditor Tom Wisdom the program could be worked out in a way that would materially benefit each county and the whole state.

THE REJUVENATED CHAMBER.

The business interests of Atlanta are not giving the rejuvenated Chamber of Commerce the support merited by its splendid accomplishments of the present year.

President Choate, in a letter to the membership of the chamber, illustrates the need for co-operation effort and quotes Rudyard Kipling's comment to the effect that "it ain't the guns nor armaments, nor ships nor mines of coal, but the everlasting team work of every blooming soul."

This spirit should control the relation of every patriotic Atlanta citizen in his relationship not only to the Chamber of Commerce but to every organization working for the civic development of the community. President Choate well says in his letter that "it is a great work to build a city and a finer work to build a greater city."

Asking the earnest co-operation of all members of the organization to that end, the head of the chamber writes:

Since the war a pronounced change in methods of selling and distributing merchandise and wares of every sort has come about. In this change certain weaknesses have developed in Atlanta's position as a market center which need to be corrected. This can be accomplished by, first, discovering the things that need to be done; second, determining the methods to be followed; third, working together in the Chamber of Commerce as the authentic medium through which to unite our efforts in a common task.

President Choate urges those to whom his letter is addressed to "come up and see us some time!"

Every Atlanta business and professional man should acquaint himself with the splendid strides forward now being accomplished by the chamber. The organization has rendered yeoman work during the past few months, and its fine and effective efforts should bring it new support and a broader opportunity for service.

Other southern cities are building up their chambers of commerce in anticipation of the new economic conditions which will exist when the business of the country again reaches prosperous levels. Atlanta's chamber must receive more general and earnest support from the business interests of the city if it is to keep pace with the broadened programs of other southern communities.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Cease Fire!

The Spanish minister of war has just cancelled the fall maneuvers of the glorious army of Spain on the singular ground that the cold weather may "cause colds and chills amongst the troops."

Atta boy! That is the way to speed the cause of lasting and eternal peace. Now we are moving in the right direction. Or rather, we are slipping back to old practice. For in the middle ages, too, they retired to "winter quarters" during a war when the temperature got too chilly. The armies rested. To rest is infinitely better than messing around in the mud. This calling off the maneuvers in Spain opens up interesting possibilities. In the first place, other countries may follow suit. Secondly, it might be argued that if winter is a bad time either for maneuvering or for actual fighting, there are a thousand and one more profitable and happy ways of spending a summer than fighting through it.

Bit by bit we may advance and establish the silliness of the whole business. In winter it's no use, we might catch chills. In summer, it is inadvisable, as many young ladies will have to do without suitable companions to go canoeing, let us say. Peace for all the year around is not such a bad proposition.

We met a few fellows once on the road, just out of Asheville. It was in 1917. "Where have you been?" we asked. "Oh," they said, "we were on a job laying out a garden in front of general headquarters. It was the jakest war we ever saw." Gardening, a good substitute for war.

In Fleet Street.

In Fleet Street, where the great English dailies have their home, the barmaids are prettier than anywhere else in London. Buxom lasses with pink arms, red cheeks, golden hair, ready smile and gal prattle, tireless, eternally patient, trusting, the refined counterpart of the milkmaid. With what art do they draw a pint of ale or pour a whisky. And how lightly do they break a bottle of champagne. A rhapsodist recently wrote of them that people are always discovering that Fleet Street barmaids talk like Greek. He is right. When a barmaid is made, some journalists insist on bending across the bar and insists on kissing the girl. It would be interesting to know how many times daily Fleet Street barmaids resist being kissed. Together, with such statistics there should be figures showing just what effect, if any, the barmaids have on the contents of newspapers. What does the financial editor of this or that great paper write after having been inspired at the bar, ay, or the home port?

An American Find.

Recognizable grains of the stone age in Europe have been found, grains of wheat, 6,000 years older than the pyramids. So we are told. But scientists say that even if the husk and the starch may survive, the tiny germ in which alone life resides is extinct after 50 years at the utmost. So the find and the opinion of science do not harmonize. The tale is told that about the moonflower seeds obtained from the bridal wreath on the 6,000-year-old head of the mummy of an Egyptian princess. The seeds had flowered all right, but the moonflower is a native of tropical America, so for a wreath of it to be found in the mummy case of an Egyptian princess meant that America must have been discovered 4,000 years before Columbus, by Egyptian navigators, who took specimens of the blossom back with them. Why not? (Copyright, 1933, for The Constitution.)

DEGENERATION AND REGENERATION.
TB in common parlance means tuberculosis, but actually the symbol was primarily used by physicians to signify tubercle bacilli—the old-time doctor could tell a colleague in the presence of the patient or family that he had found tubercle bacilli in the sputum. The correct abbreviation for tuberculosis, if an abbreviation must be used, is the CVD. But the use of an abbreviation when you refer to tuberculosis is too quaint now that education has removed the stigma of tuberculosis.

CVD in medical parlance means heart and artery disease or degeneration. In the past few decades CVD has fought for more deaths than has tuberculosis, which was formerly champion in the lists. We believe this is due to the enlightenment of the public concerning the nature, cause and prevention of tuberculosis. Meanwhile, the public has not learned much about the nature of prevention of CVD. The public is not likely to learn much about it. This is rather a matter of individual hygiene or personal health. Degeneration—well, that's the fate in store for every man and woman who survives middle age; whatever age you elect that to be. In old age we all degenerate. Some of us get started earlier than others in the degeneration business.

Of course, you are as old as your arteries—or as old as your lungs or your muscles. Do not fall into the error of assuming that because the arteries are hard and brittle in old age that is why old age comes. It would be as sensible to think that gray hair brings on old age. As explained in an earlier talk, CVD (cardio-vascular disease or degeneration) comprises not only arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries but also many cases of myocarditis (organic impairment of the heart muscle), angina pectoris, apo-

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

HOWE WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Some of the funny money talk lately has come from no less a personage than Louis Howe. He is supposed to have planted the yarn about devaluation being absurd.

When the insiders heard about that they called for ice water and smelling salts. They figured Mr. Roosevelt must have lost trust in the brain trust and was letting his shrewd political adviser handle money matters. It meant big things because Howe was apt to have some very novel ideas about money. He did not know a yen from a carrot when he left Albany. The big boys were scared. They were all wrong.

SMOKE SCREEN The truth seems to be that Howe is in charge of confusion, not money.

The president has been somewhat irritated by the pressure brought on him by Wall Street, and business as well for some assurance about what was going to happen to the dollar. This irritation assumed such proportions that in a comic way he drew a sword recently when reporters continuously plagued him for an answer to the money question.

He has gone to unusual lengths to keep speculators from finding out what he really had in mind. Howe was pressed into service for that cause.

When bigger and better confusion is made Howe will make it. Someone else will make the money policy.

MALICE This talk of "sabotage" against the NRA is not all talk. There is more behind it than General Johnson and Senator Wagner have chosen to say.

They cannot prove it, but they have very emphatic evidence of a concerted effort to break down the NRA. It is sponsored by ultra-conservatives who have been hiding in their holes since March 4. In some communities it has developed as far as a secret understanding not to buy in NRA stores. Of itself the movement does not amount to much.

It would not be serious, except for the fact that it is attracting support from a far greater class of people who are disappointed and angry about the many mistakes the NRA has made.

This vast class gives a sincere front to those who are out to undermine the NRA movement maliciously.

FEARS What Johnson and Wagner really fear is that a majority of the people will be misled into abandoning the little fundamental good the NRA has accomplished.

Even that would not be so bad if only the NRA issue were involved.

The next step the administration has had in the back of its head all along is national planning. The NRA was actually to be built. If it failed (and all except the zealots in charge of it thought it would fail to accomplish a full measure of recovery) then the procedure was to be even shorter hours, price control, production control and actual government supervision.

If a popular wave of indignation is aroused against the NRA it ruins not only everything the administration has done but nearly everything it planned to do.

The government today can only get away with what a majority of the people will stand for.

FUTILITY A certain South American nation tried to get the United States to take the lead in postponing the coming Pan-American conference at Montevideo. The state department declined.

No one else cared to take the initiative, so the meeting will probably assemble.

However, that is a good tip on what you can expect out of the conference.

RELAXATION It may be denied, but word has been passed around that the public works administration has loosened up at last. Forthcoming figures will show that more and more money is being put out.

That means the stringent requirements of those in control are being relaxed somewhat. In at least a few instances contracts have been let before engineers had an opportunity to render a final report.

MORAL? A very prominent Wall Street man recently forgot that his business was automobiles and he got mixed up in the wheat market. He over-extended himself and was badly trimmed. He should have profited by the experience of a big time banker who sat on the board of a dozen corporations while he was chairman of the bank board. They say he once dashed out of a directors' meeting of a public utility corporation and unloaded 20,000 shares of stock on the basis of inside information he had obtained there.

NOTES You hear a lot of talk in this administration about the use of "other people's money" in financial operations. The man who coined that currently popular phrase is Associate Justice Brandeis of the supreme court. He wrote a book by that title back in 1913.

Good sources intimate that Congressman Hill will run against Senator Dill in the Washington senatorial primary if he can get proper support in the western section of the state. That proper support may be forthcoming from Senator Bone unless Bone gets some public works money for his Seattle power plant.

A congressman recently went to Mr. Roosevelt on the money question and pleaded: "What can I tell the people of my state?" He did not get the answer.

The Stage Setting Is Changed, But the Same Old Drama Is Played Forever

By Robert Quillen

In a recent publication a feminine writer pictures her childhood in Maine and tells how faithfully the youngsters of her family studied their lessons as they sat around the dining room table at night.

Then she concludes with an unflattering comparison: "The fact is that they studied with a naturalness and a faith unknown to the rank and file of twentieth century America."

The lady is mistaken. Through grammar school and high school my daughter followed the routine that was common in her mother's time.

When the weather was fine she hurried home from school, ate her lunch, and at once got at her lessons and piano practice. The idea was to get all unpleasant business finished and leave the evening hours free for play.

In cold weather, when the days were short, the play hours came first and the studying was done after dark.

Then she joined the family circle—if three can be a circle—and sat at the living room table to wrestle with algebra and history and Latin and French until bedtime. The program never varied except when company or too much talk interfered with concentration and drove her to her own room.

She was neither bookish nor a paragon of industry. She had a normal dislike for lessons and a short temper for the ones that stumped her. She did not lead her class. She merely contrived, in the elegant phrase of her generation, to get by. And that was enough.

The point is that she studied as youngsters did 40 years ago and 90 years ago and yet was no exception. Every child in her grade did the same thing. With few exceptions, every child at school did it. The home life of ordinary people hasn't changed much. Parents still are eager for their children to get an education and "be somebody." It is still a family disgrace if a child fails to "pass." Youngsters still rejoice in leading their class.

I wonder if all authors unintentionally deceive their readers and if all history is untrue.

A writer changes and thinks the world has changed, or moves into a new environment and assumes the old one has become like the new.

But the world changes little. Written records two thousands years old prove that oldsters of that age despaired of the younger generation, parents worried because their daughter was out late at night, and a proud son complimented his mother because she refused to paint her face as fashion demanded.

Time brings new gadgets and new play-pretties, but human nature functions in the same old way.

ALABAMA IS SLAIN IN CHICAGO DUELING

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Cloris Yorkston, about 25, believed by police to be from Mobile, Ala., was shot to death by one of three men who called on him at his rooming house here Saturday night.

Police said a letter written to Yorkston by Miss Rosa Moore, 115 North Halsted street, Mobile, led them to believe he was also from the Alabama city.

Since They Insist on Having a War—Why Not?

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 22.—

You can go as far as you like this winter with any of the pelts you prefer; and you can dip back to skunk—that luxurious and lovely accessory to winter fashion—if you care to. According to Adelin, fur used in unusual ways will be smarter than the regular collar and cuff effect. Huge "bracelets" of fur will be chic on the afternoon suits of the winter. And the fur "tie" is far more different and sophisticated than the regulation shoulder collar.

When choosing the Madge Evans costumes for "Forever Faithful," a two-color combination of black wool skirt with yellow wool jacket was worn over a black blouse with high corset collar. A barrel muff of cross-fur repeats the yellow tones of the jacket—for the muff is one of the most important of the fur accents.

A beige woolen cape frock with matching swaggy belted jacket makes a smart costume for the same girl in the same picture. The tailored frock has a shoulder cape finish with a wide band of rich blue fox. When she wears the collarless swaggy jacket the cape is pulled over the coat, softly draped about the neckline to form a flattering fur lei of fox to frame the face.

Madge Evans' fur bracelets come in with a brown-and-white flecked wool ensemble designed with a tailored frock and interesting waistline jacket high at the throat, fastened with a back with tortoise shell clasps. Over each shoulder is a tiny cape that ends in bracelets of fur—this time about the elbow.

You can wear jeweled pins in your hair these evenings without looking the least bit chic. It's very smart, a brilliant crescent locks in your hair and then have the clasp of the belt of the evening gown a crescent also.

Bedlam Rules Old Austrian Castle Where Princess Is Virtual Captive

KLAGENFURT, Carinthia, Austria, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Bedlam has broken loose at Castle Pitterstatten, where Princess Margot von Seinsch-Meininger remains a virtual captive by order of Chancellor Dollfus.

Her husband, the prince, was in jail, where he was placed yesterday charged with being a participant in a Nazi conspiracy.

The castle's five dogs are dismayed at the absence of their master. They are running wildly about the castle, howling, barking, upsetting suits of armor in their excited search for the prince. And their mistress is unable to quiet them.

Complicating the matter is the fact that dogs, especially dachshunds, don't like the idea of a garrison of detectives watching the movements of the castle personnel.

Newsman, Scientists, Cameramen Set Out in Search of Sea Serpent

SEATTLE, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A party of newsmen, photographers, mariners and scientists put out today to search for the hiaschuckeluck sea serpent.

It was all very well for fishermen, Indians, girl scouts, tourists and such like imaginative persons to report 30-foot monsters swimming in Vancouver lake and off the coast of Vancouver island, but when ministers, provincial officials and hard-boiled sea captains assert they saw the dread cadborosaurus, the serrated dorsal fins and terrible fangs, that was too much.

A Victoria newspaper sent the expedition into the straits of Juan de Fuca, where Captain W. N. Frenzel of the Grace liner Santa Lucia reported he saw a sea monster of giant size.

Captain Frenzel was reluctant to discuss the nightmare that has caused him to be called "the sea monster hunter" by B. C. from New York and home.

"My navigating officer called my attention to a big, peculiarly shaped object about 300 feet away," he said. "We saw it was moving rapidly. It cut quite a wake, and when it disappeared it left quite a wide area of foam, as if a giant tail had lashed the water."

Navigating Officer A. E. Richards said it was early in the morning, and the ship was about 25 miles east of Victoria.

"The serpent was lying on the water," he said, "and when we came past it lifted its head and looked at the ship. It had a face something like a sea cow. Its head was about 36 inches broad and maybe four or one-half feet long. The serpent or

The crescent will also be found repeated in the brilliant clasp of the evening bag.

One of the cutest tricks of these hair gadgets is the pair of diamond wings which Kay Francis clasps in her lovely black hair just above the ears. They give a great intrigue to the coiffure and are the last word in mondaine chic.

Mirror buckles are one of the new notes and a very pretty one too. You are instantly convinced that you don't need to look into a mirror to fully enjoy its charms. Flat discs of mirror a couple of inches wide are set in gleaming silver to make one of the most effective buckles I've ever seen and the perfect finish to a gown of russet, plum and a laidesse and Kay Francis is wearing these lunning things.

Claire Trevor—a very cute blonde trick who will undoubtedly build up quite a fan following for herself among the boys and girls of the world instead of just the boys and girls who managed to hit Broadway where she used to hang her cute little hussies—can wear the new Tyrolean gaw-gaws in quite the nonchalant manner which they demand. The Tyrolean chic must have a breeze from the mountains through it. It must have a yodel hidden away somewhere ready to out at any moment. It must have a jense and a jense and a laidesse and a decided wham about it that few can carry off.

When the little Trevor wears a jaunty Tyrolean hat of green suede with a badgey brush out the back, you just instinctively reach for a rucksack and all that it takes. Her chamois coat is sleeveless and the dress which completes the costume is of a plaid so beautifully faded that you feel she's been doing mountain trails in it for innumerable seasons.

Suit Contesting NRA Argued at Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 22.—(AP)

A suit contesting the constitutionality of the national recovery act was argued in federal court here, but District Judge George Taylor reserved his decision until Monday. The suit, filed by Ralph Starnes, 35, a mill employee, seeks an injunction preventing his former employer, the Southern Silk Mills, of Spring City, Tenn., from complying with the underwear manufacturers' code and the United States district attorney from prosecuting the mills for alleged violation of the code.

Detroit Man Held In Death of Wife

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Edward J. McCann, 53, wanted in Detroit for the slaying of his wife, Laverne, 34, on September 1, was arrested here today.

Mrs. Loretta Hickman McCann's sister-in-law, saw the fugitive on a street, and notified police. Sergeant Angland Fitzgerald said the man confessed and announced he would waive extradition.

Mrs. McCann was slain in her home. Her body was hacked to bits and pieces of it were found at various places over the city.

ATLANTANS ATTEND CAROLINA MEETING

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)

Approximately 800 Mormons of South Carolina attended the annual conference of Latter Day Saints here today. Large delegations were present from Greenville, Gaffney, Spartanburg, Charleston and Atlanta.

Elder Melvin J. Ballard, of Salt Lake City, Utah, one of the general authorities of the church.

Business sessions reported at a business session that new chapters were needed in the state as a result of membership growth. They said the movement of Mormons westward had been halted and many were now coming from the west to the south.

Elder Ballard will leave tomorrow for Florida where he will speak at Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami. He is accompanied by Elder Charles A. Callis, of Atlanta.

REVIEWING THE SHOWS

'Up Popped the Devil' Presented At Erlanger by Peruchi Players

With their new leads, Rel Terry and Lance Davis, already established in the hearts of Atlanta theatergoers as two of the most charming and capable stock actors ever seen in this city, the Peruchi Players at the Erlanger theater this week offer "Up Popped the Devil," with an especially fine production throughout.

This play is not only an exceedingly clever comedy but it also carries a strong dramatic punch and is noted for the breathless interest in which it grips all audiences. It centers around the efforts of a young married couple to reverse the usual order of life, by allowing the wife to make the living while the husband attends to the household tasks. And at the same time they are pestered to death by well-meaning friends who make their apartment an almost constant port of call—and refreshment.

The play is filled with ridiculous situations and sparkling lines and should prove highly popular with patrons of the Erlanger.

The Erlanger orchestra and a special vocal surprise presentation will be heard from the pit between acts and before each performance.

The Peruchians continue their bargain scale of prices, presenting remarkably fine shows for the admission asked. In fact, their performances would be highly creditable at three or four times the cost. And tonight, as on all Monday nights, ladies are admitted free if accompanied by escort.

There will be the usual six nightly performances at 8:15 and bargain matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2:15, with all seats for the night performances reserved.

Summerville and Pitts Score in Georgia Film

All the lawyers in Georgia, all their clients and their friends should see "Love, Honor and Oh Baby" at the Georgia theater this week to regenerate a sense of humor and understand the difficulties that the gentlemen at the bar face at times.

Truly delightful in this satire on the third estate, but it is sympathetic. As usual there is a moral basis for the queer working out of fate for a designing woman hunter in the hands of a stupidly smart attorney.

Either Zasu Pitts or Slim Summerville is enough to attract attention, but "lumped" together as they are in this film, they are more than pleasing—they are hilarious and the pain of the mirth they cause is rather excruciating.

Miss Pitts is her usual dumb character who is the pliable tool of others. Slim Summerville is her vacuous sweetheart who yields to a compromise for his future wife in order to get money to get married on. Movie-

Fox and Grand Shows Reviewed on Saturday

The new programs at Loew's Grand and the Fox theaters were reviewed in The Constitution on Saturday.

At Loew's Grand "Night Life" is offered, with an all-star cast including John and Lionel Barrymore, Helen

New Zane Grey Film At Rialto Is Pleading

Zane Grey's "The Last Trail" is the featured film at the Rialto for the first half of the week, and although it is not to be confused with the Last Roundup, there sure is one swell roundup of crooks in the last few feet of the film.

George O'Brien and a very pretty little girl by the name of Claire Trevor play the leads in this typically romantic Grey tale of the new Arizona, but the picture is bolstered considerably by the comedy of our old friend, El Brendel, and the light of his love, Lucile LaVerne, who plays the part of a good straight-laced old western gal to complete satisfaction just as she has every other role ever given her.

About the story, Tom, the hero, is a roamin' lad who has wandered far from his uncle's ranch and returns unexpectedly to find a group of dude ranchers trying to plot him out of his land, one of them posing as Tom, the heir to the estate.

With a reputation as a bad man, Tom muscles in and the gang tells him that he must impersonate the heir himself. The girl apparently belongs to the gang of crooks, but it all turns out that she's a detective and aids Tom in rounding up the gang.

All in all, "The Last Trail" is pretty fair entertainment. Added are a Taxo Boys comedy and some ring history in which old Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel are seen in their great fight and the famous Dempsey-Firpo fight, both of them clipped from old newsreels, are shown to the delight of prize fight fans.

Fine Concert Given By Ruth D. Smith

Ruth Dabney Smith, Atlanta violinist, with Mrs. Julius DeGivie at the piano, gave a concert that was characterized by fine feeling and sincerity at the Woman's Club auditorium Sunday afternoon, the second of the winter series sponsored by the life membership division of the club.

The outstanding number of the program was the entire Bruch concerto in E minor for violin, an accomplishment in memorization and violin technique.

A tribute to Georg Lindner, her former teacher, was the performance of the "Hungarian Dance" by Lindner, brilliantly rendered. An admirable spirit of reverence was shown by the entire program of masters' works.

A large audience expressed appreciation for the excellent work of both Miss Smith and Mrs. DeGivie.

Large Crowd Enjoys Buckhead Concert

The largest audience that has yet greeted the Buckhead Symphony orchestra since it began its series of Sunday afternoon concerts at the Buckhead theater was present for the brilliant program rendered yesterday.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Debutantes' Club, part of the proceeds were devoted to the club's charity work at Grady hospital. Miss Caroline Crumley is president of the club.

Miss Claire Harper, one of Atlanta's most accomplished violinists, was guest soloist and her rendition of the Wagnerian "Concerto in E Minor" was beyond criticism for brilliance and technical perfection.

Miss Harper handles her instrument with a force and assurance almost masculine at times, while she brings the true feminine delicacy of touch to the lighter moods. The orchestra was excellent in its accompaniment.

During the second half of the program Miss Harper gave a group of numbers with Miss Ruby Chalmers as piano accompanist. Her Debussy selection was particularly delightful, as well as the dance number by De Falla.

The orchestra itself shows a continuation of the steady improvement that has been noticeable, week by

HOG-NOSED SNAKE.

Last Thursday afternoon in the game and fish department at the capitol, two interesting specimens were brought to my attention. The first was a hog-nosed snake, better known in this vicinity as a spreading adder.

Of all the bluffers in the snake clan, this one is perhaps the most effective. The specimen was captured by Edgar Gunn on Washington street; its presence there is not easily explainable, but the fact remains.

The most persistent annoying of this species of snake cannot make it bite. I have tried time and again to make them mad enough to bite me, but without success. I have had spectators at this sort of contest climb on chairs and desks and even window sills to escape the raging fury of the so-called adder. It is a picture of viciousness; the body flattens and loud hisses rush from the glottis as this reptile seeks to intimidate its tormentor. Failing to accomplish this purpose, it will turn on its back, mouth open, and play dead.

If silence ensues, the snake will turn right side up and try to crawl away, but a sharp clap of the hands will send it back into its fake death. All in all, it is the most amusing species I know, and so totally average to biting that it makes a nice pet for the children.

The name adder, as we implied before, is a misnomer. This species is rather common near Atlanta, and may be found in open situations. The name that heads this article is taken from the unusual shape of the rostral scale. In most snakes the rostral, which is the scale at the tip of the head, is rounded and smooth, but in week, since its organization. Conductor Enrico Leide is putting his men through many rehearsals before each program and the result of this work is being heard each Sunday afternoon.

The finest performance yesterday, by the orchestra, was the gorgeous symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," by Liszt, while it interpreted the lighter music of Gustav Liders' "Prince of Pilsen" with just the right gusto and fantasy.

the hog-nosed snake, the rostral is turned up to a sharp point which gives the appearance of a snout of sorts. The coloration in a typical specimen is markedly yellow and black, with yellow spots down a back-ground color of black. Further description will serve only to confuse, for variation is at its best in the races of Heterodon.

That reminds me—the name herpetologists give to this species is Heterodon contortrix. Watch the living specimens, and you need not strain your imagination to understand the aptness of the specific name.

Like most individuals that bluster and rage, the hog-nosed snake is literally a bag of wind. He will not bite, as I know from many trials, and is so amusing when his wind deserts him that he merits all the laughs he gets.

Thos. J. Boggs Dies Of Auto Injuries

Funeral services for Thomas J. Boggs, 49, of 278 Ponce de Leon avenue, who died at a private hospital early Sunday from injuries suffered when struck down by an automobile Friday night, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Baptist tabernacle.

Mr. Boggs was struck at North avenue and Fowler street by an automobile that sped away from the scene after knocking him down. He suffered a broken leg and internal injuries. He did not regain consciousness.

Dr. W. H. Knight, pastor of the tabernacle, will conduct the funeral services. Interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, with Awtry & Lowder in charge.

Mr. Boggs is survived by his wife, Mrs. Orie Boggs; six daughters, Mrs. Edward Burgess, Mrs. Frank Fincher and Misses Sue, Catherine, Annie Rose and Willie Pearl Boggs, and six sons, J. T. Boggs Jr., Spencer, Gordon, Lewis, Charlie and Mack Boggs. Two brothers, J. W. and J. S. Boggs, of Griffin, Ga., also survive.

Board Will Resume Phone Hearing Today

Anticipating the completion of the investigation of telephone rates in Georgia by Friday night, the Georgia public service commission will this morning enter into the sixth week of one of the longest probes ever conducted in this state.

Assistant Attorney-General John T. Gore plans to inquire into bond issues of the Southern Bell Telephone Company as the hearing is resumed today. Gore indicated he would probe the purpose of a $25,000,000 stock issue of the Southern Bell Company which was made in 1929. Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit said he believed the commission this week will have acquired sufficient testimony from the various telephone companies in the state to end the investigation by Friday.

BUILDING SUPPLY MEN MEET HERE TUESDAY

The Georgia Retail Lumber & Building Supply Association will hold a meeting on Tuesday at 10 o'clock at the Ansley hotel, which all dealers in lumber and building supplies, also strictly building supply dealers, have been asked to attend.

The code of fair competition for retail lumber, lumber products, building materials and building specialties trade, as approved by the president of the United States, will be discussed. An attendance of at least 300 dealers is expected. T. M. Willingham, of Macon, is president.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO PLAY 9-GOAL POLO!

CECIL SMITH, ONE OF THE HIGHEST-RANKING polo players in the world, and sensational star of the recent open-championship matches on Long Island, says, "Most polo players, myself included, prefer Camels. I like their flavor and they never upset my nerves."

HE: That was the most exciting chukker I ever watched.
SHE: My nerves are all fluttering.
HE: Will you have a Camel? They never get on your nerves.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

It's no place for jangled nerves—this game called polo. Listen to Cecil Smith, one of America's finest players:

"Polo makes continuous demands on your nervous system. A fraction of a second determines whether or not you can successfully ride your opponent out of a play and a fraction of an inch in your aim when going full gallop may mean the difference of a goal made or missed. No wonder international polo takes years of practice, excellent physical condition and healthy nerves. Most polo players, myself included, smoke a great deal. And most polo players, myself included again, prefer to smoke Camels. They seem milder. I like their flavor and they never upset my nerves."

Try Camels yourself. You'll like their flavor, too—and whether you play polo or not you'll appreciate the fact that you can smoke as many as you want without upsetting your nerves.

TECH, GEORGIA START WORKING FOR NEW GAMES

Jackets Go to Chapel Hill and Bulldogs Entertain Violets.

By Jimmy Jones.

Georgia and Georgia Tech—the one victorious and the other loser by narrow scores in week-end debacles—will start preparing today for forthcoming games, leaving the cussing and the discussing to the Monday morning quarterbacks.

Harry Mehre's Bulldogs, with their most elaborate home game of the season to look forward to, namely N. Y. U.'s first football pilgrimage to classic Athens Saturday, will make a lot of hay while the sun is shining. Harry has a few injuries left from the close shave with Mercer Friday, but hopes to get his lads properly attuned for the first meeting with the New Yorkers on Georgia soil.

The Bulldogs have been journeying to Gotham for several years now to engage the Violets and this is the first return visit of the latter. Naturally the Bulldogs want to see that they are well entertained—particularly on the football field. N. Y. U. lost to a strong Colgate team Saturday, 7-0.

JACKETS PLAY N. C.

Tech played a good game against Tulane Saturday, allowing for the treacherous footing. The Jackets played a good enough game to win or certainly to tie. They got the ball in position to score often enough—being inside the 15-yard line on three occasions. Ordinarily Jack Phillips would have put it over on one of these chances, but he couldn't generate enough power on the soggy turf, especially with Tulane's line putting up its best defense of the season thus far.

The Jackets leave Friday night for Chapel Hill to play North Carolina and hope to get back into the win column. They are at the 500 mark with two wins now.

Coach Alexander had no fault to find with his boys, praised Jack Phillips' fine placing of punts very high and thought that outside of the 100-yard gallop by the snake bit, Mr. Bucky Bryan it would have ended with a tie.

Needless to say, however, Mr. Alexander thought Bryan's run a peach, and that he got very little blocking on the play. He would take nothing from Tulane's victory. And he was glad it was 7-0 as it ended than if Tech had scored later and failed to kick the extra point in the clammy mud.

"I'd rather lose a 7-0 game any time than a 7-6 game," Mr. Alexander declared.

NO INJURIES.

The Jackets escaped injury in the game. The ground was soft and slippery and consequently there was a lot of sliding around, but no injuries.

Jack Phillips' play in that game continued to reflect credit upon his ability. He is the closest match to Buck Chapman, of Georgia, and he is the closest match to Buck Chapman, of Georgia, and he is the closest match to Buck Chapman, of Georgia.

CARNERA WINS OVER UZCUDUN

ROME, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Primo Carnera, Italy's first modern world heavyweight champion, retained his title today by battering out a 15-round decision over blood-soaked Paolo Uzcudun, of Spain, before Premier Benito Mussolini and 65,000 other fans in the historic Piazza di Siena.

Mussolini and his three sons, Vittorio, Bruno and Romano, were among numerous notables at the ringside as the giant Carnera, modern descendant of Epus and Eurydus, fathers of ancient Roman gladiatorial combat, rained terrific blows on the veteran Paolo. The referee was forced to halt the bout temporarily in the sixth to sponge the blood from Paolo's face.

It was Carnera's second victory over the gold-toothed woodchopper, and it was decisive enough to settle any argument over their last meeting in Barcelona three years ago, when Primo took a decision from the Basque.

Duke in Race For National Honors

By Jack Cuddy.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Outstanding candidates for the national championship, as well as sectional honors, were smashed into the gridiron dust Saturday in a series of stunning football upsets that featured a bumper national program, witnessed by more than 1,000,000 fans.

The American public, showing greater early-season football enthusiasm than in years, swarmed out to games in almost unprecedented numbers in all sections of the country, and were more than repaid in thrills. After the dust settled, Michigan in the mid-west, Princeton and Army in the east and Duke in the south stood out as the four most eligible candidates for the national championship.

Loyola Crumples Spring Hill, 45-0

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Loyola university of New Orleans made its season debut in afternoon football here today by crumpling a game and scrappy but outplayed eleven, the Badgers from Spring Hill college, Mobile, Ala., 45 to 0.

Loyola's team outweighed Spring Hill and by their weight and might ripped the visitors' line to shreds. The score probably would have gone higher if substitutes had not gone in for Loyola.

Spring Hill, however, offered a real threat in Charles Traynor, the only man to make consistent gains against the powerful front line defense of the Wolf Pack. His off tackle jaunts brought the Ducote clan its only chance to score and on several occasions added quite a few yards.

If Football 'Systems' Won Games, Some Eras Would Never End

Notre Dame's defeat by Carnegie Tech in one of the many football revolutions fostered by the otherwise tranquil day of October 21, was perhaps the most significant of them all.

It marked the end of an epoch, probably the greatest epoch the game has ever known.

All football epochs must end, as must all epochs in civilization. And this one which ended before the charge of Carnegie Tech was the end of the Rockne epoch. Because Hunk Anderson was trying to carry on the Rockne game.

Anderson has made a really marvelous record. He has had great material and he has lost few games; very, very few. But his position was an almost untenable one to begin with. He was coaching men who had played for Rockne, who had enjoyed a peculiar imagination, a tremendous personality and a particular style of play.

Football is essentially a team game. And yet in instruction it is essentially the result of one man's personality and imagination.

Anderson has shown that he is a splendid coach. He will do well anywhere else. The next man who heads the Notre Dame staff will find the going much easier. He will be, as Anderson will be at some other position, teaching his own game. Anderson was forced, by circumstances, to try and teach Rockne's game. And Rockne was the only one who could do that.

All talk of "systems" is mostly talk. What wins football games is good material which has learned how to accept and interpret a certain personality and imagination. It is this interpretation by a skillful team which wins games, not a "system." If "systems" won then some football eras would never end.

And all eras must end. One ended at Knoxville on Saturday when Alabama defeated Tennessee.

The system was as sound as ever. The men were not.

THE TENNESSEE ERA.

There is no need to suspect, for instance, that Major Bob Neyland at Tennessee, is other than a capable and successful football coach simply because his team twice has been defeated.

Before October 14 his Tennessee football teams had been defeated but twice in seven years. They then lost on October 14th and 21st to Duke and Alabama, respectively.

It was simply a matter of having more difficult games than usual. And a matter of having more ill fortune than usual. In other years there had been few injuries at Tennessee. When one did happen the games were usually spaced so that the injured man could be made ready for the next difficult test.

A valuable man was lost before the Duke game. Three others, of equal value, were lost in the Duke game. The Tennessee coaching staff had but one week in which to prepare a new backfield set and teach it its assignments.

The picture of the super-coach often has been drawn by the press. He really does not exist. A super-coach would, of course, merely have whispered the assignments into the shell-like ears of his new backfield set.

But, fortunately for one and all, there are no super-coaches. And no super-systems. There must be, first of all, capable material and next a capable coach with imagination, personality, intelligence.

And that is the best system of all.

THE PLAY'S THE THING.

It was several weeks ago that I talked with a well-known coach who had played for Rockne. He had been on three of Rockne's great teams.

"I wonder what 'Rock' would be doing now?" he said. "He would have changed something to meet the demands of football. Because the game has changed. The quick kick and the developments in open play have changed football radically in the past three years.

"Then, too, there are so many teams using the Notre Dame system of play that it is becoming known. It is easier to set a defense for it. Yes, sir, I wonder what 'Rock' would be doing now?"

It is probable that Rockne would have changed his system just enough to upset the opposition. He was never one to remain stable, was the volatile Rockne. Many of his players, now coaches, have made many changes.

Yet behind it all, behind any so-called football "system" is the coach himself. There is more pure bunk written and talked each year about "systems" than anything else in football.

The coach is the system. It must be his own. And, of course, he must have, to repeat again, if he is to coach and produce a winner, a squad which has men capable of being inspired, of a capacity to grasp the imaginative scoring plays and an intelligence to comprehend the coach.

The play's the thing.

THE FOOTBALL FORTUNE TELLER.

Do you wake up with that dizzy feeling? Do your ears ring? Do you have spots before the eyes and that "all gone" feeling?

Does your back ache? Are you one of the four out of five who have it? Are your arches flat? Does breakfast seem tasteless? Then you do not need kidney pills or a mouth wash or a Swiss scientist's new drink.

You are just one of the football fortune tellers who had a lot of guesses go wrong.

After guessing wrong on only four out of 41 the previous week, Saturday saw 14 misses out of 50 selections. Not so bad. And yet not so good.

Still, it's a batting average of .805 for two weeks of this football fortune telling business. And .805 is a fair average. But 14 misses out of 50. Phooey!

I am laboring under the handicap of having seen a lot of teams and having talked to coaches. Coaches make up the largest membership clique in the "Usually Wrong" club.

The fellow who doesn't know a single football player and who doesn't know a coach's name is in the best spot. He doesn't receive a lot of misinformation and just makes a plain, blind guess.

Meanwhile, the poor old Fortune Teller, having heard this opinion and that, tries to put down his guess on what is laughingly referred to as form.

And form, in the ring, on the gridiron or on the track is no more stable than the market quotations.

FOOTBALL TOGS ARRIVE.

The San Diego (Cal.) Marines received their football togs just a few hours before their first game against Santa Barbara Athletic Club. They were rushed by airplane from the east when a hurry order was sent out the night before the game.

FANS GETTING WARY.

Madison Square Garden hit an all-time low in advance sale for a boxing match when only $200 was in the till a few hours before the opening program of the winter season, starring the heavyweights, McCordindale and Perrone.

SUPERIOR PLAY IN LINE GAVE ALABAMA EDGE

Teams Evenly Matched; Penalties Hurt Vols, McGugin Says

By Dan E. McGugin,

Head Football Coach, Vanderbilt University.

(Copyright, Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Analysis of the Tennessee-Alabama game won by the latter 12-6, shows that the teams were indeed very evenly matched.

Alabama scored two touchdowns, Tennessee one, but Tennessee received the last kick-off of the game and came down the field to Alabama's five-yard line. The punting of both teams was for the most part brilliant but each punter made too short kicks. Alabama completed one pass for ten yards. Tennessee completed five passes for sixty-five yards. Both teams suffered severely in penalties, chiefly fifteen-yard penalties for piling on, and these penalties were factors in all three touchdowns and a factor in Tennessee's march to the goal line in the closing minutes of play.

Neither team gained with any consistency on straight, simple running plays, with the exception of Feathers in the Tennessee touchdown. Tennessee's secondary defense was not up to its standard due, no doubt, to injuries which prevented the playing of key veteran men.

EQUAL IN PUNTING.

Summing the game up, the teams were about equal in punting. Tennessee superior in passing and Alabama superior in rushing. Therefore the deciding factor was the one which controlled the hard fought game between great opponents, namely a little superiority in line play. And in this slight superiority in line play Alabama was the victor.

More and more Notre Dame coaches are getting away from the straight orthodox of Notre Dame offense. Alabama begins with the Notre Dame set of offense and into regular Notre Dame formation but also shifts into modified punt formation.

In scoring a touchdown from the six-yard line, however, Alabama did not shift at all and apparently took Tennessee by surprise. Possibly the difference in score was due to the difference in penalties, as is often true in close games. Tennessee lost eighty-five yards through penalties and Alabama sixty yards and the difference, twenty-five yards, is important in a close, hard fought game.

HOWELL GOOD.

It is unjust to pick out stars where all carry out their assignments effectively. Howell, Alabama's punting and running and the play of the line were superb. For Tennessee, all were good—Feathers, running with his old determination to score, but among others two men stand out, Brackett, brilliant under punts—Doherty, a big, active, fast charger, tackling and blocking, a cool, light, lightning-like halfback. Vanderbilt had a tough time with Mississippi State, ending up 7-7. The Mississippi team played with beautiful spirit and a very brilliant back in Herrington. Other fast backs and first-class men among others were Smith, Taylor and Wichman. Vanderbilt's defense was poor and this was all the brilliant back in Herrington. Vanderbilt's defense was poor and this was all the brilliant back in Herrington.

Florida continued her spirited play by winning from North Carolina, University of Mississippi swapped Sewanee. Auburn took a lacing outside of the conference from Georgia Tech, Mercer, always a tough nut for Georgia, was just about as tough as a nut can be, Georgia finally winning 13-12.

LOOK OUT FOR TECH.

In a sea of mud Tulane defeated Georgia Tech 7-0 by one of those unusual plays which sometimes happen when brilliant men keep trying. Only two first downs were made by each team but Bryan, sophomore Tulane back, returned the kick-off at the beginning of the second half, 101 yards for a touchdown. Georgia Tech threatened to score several times and one of these days the team will take this out on somebody and score a lot of touchdowns.

A good Washington and Lee team scored the only touchdown of the game against Kentucky, marking the second defeat of the season of Southeastern conference teams by Southern conference aggregations.

The team in the Southeastern conference which appears to be as tough as any is Louisiana State university. Using power, speed and size in all the things a good football team has, Louisiana defeated a strong University of Arkansas team 20-0 using substitutes during a large part of the game.

With Alabama tied, Tennessee, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Auburn, Tulane, Mississippi and Sewanee defeated, Louisiana has the best chance at this writing to go through to conference championship.

Ott and Eddie Morgan, New Orleans star, were on the "Home Boys" lineup. Over 5,000 fans watched the game, which was called on account of darkness after 11 innings with the score tied, 3 to 3.

Ott Hits Triple In Exhibition Game

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Major Ott, outfielder, accounted for one run with a three-bagger here today in an exhibition game between two teams of major and minor league players.

Ott and Eddie Morgan, New Orleans star, were on the "Home Boys" lineup. Over 5,000 fans watched the game, which was called on account of darkness after 11 innings with the score tied, 3 to 3.

Colored Rivals Meet Saturday

The southern colored conference classic shifts to Atlanta this week when Morris Brown College and the Maroon Tigers of Morehouse College meet in their annual football game that will have direct bearing on the conference championship and the city title.

Ponce de Leon park will be the scene of battle. Aside from championship chances, it is another of those Morehouse-Maroon Brown battles. The winner of the game will receive a trophy and the University for the city title and possession of the large trophy offered by Dr. E. G. Bowden.

Taking part should be a comparison. Morehouse should rule a favorite. All indications point to a better offensive team at Morehouse. It is true that the Wolverines have met stiffer competition and have been able to keep their slate clean over such teams as South Carolina State, Tuskegee and Benedict.

In Intersectional Duels

It'll be the Old South against New York in two outstanding intersectional games booked for Saturday. The Georgia Bulldogs entertain New York University at Athens, Ga., and Alabama's Crimson Tide invades the Polo Grounds to find out if the Fordham Rams are as potent as they have been pictured. Above are four stars who will be in on the fun. Alabama's chances have improved since Saturday.

GIANTS DEFEAT DODGERS, 21-7

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The New York Giants played to a 21-7 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in a National Professional Football league game before 40,000 spectators today.

A forward pass by Harry Newman to Ken Strong in the first period set the ball in position for Newman to lead the Giants through the line for a touchdown.

Another pass in the second period, Newman to Campbell, was good for a second Giant touchdown. In the final period Benny Friedman faked back and whipped a short one to Paul Riblett, who dove over the line for the only Brooklyn score.

The other Giant touchdown came in the third period, when "Kink" Richards, New York backfield ace, took the ball on the kick-off and raced 70 yards to a score.

Last-Minute Score Beats Packers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The Chicago Bears scored a touchdown and kicked a field goal in the last three minutes of play to win a 10-7 victory over the Green Bay Packers today before a crowd of 18,000 at Wrigley field.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Bears, champions of the National Professional Football league, and the second time this season they have beaten the Packers in the last few minutes of play.

Cincinnati, Pitt Play to Tie.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, of the National Football league, played to a scoreless tie today through a steady drizzle of rain and on a field ankle deep in mud.

Several times Cincinnati threatened to score, but each time the Pittsburgh defense tightened and held. Twice in the last five minutes of play Alcy Clark, former Ohio State quarterback and now with the Reds, tried placement kicks, but each fell short.

Walden Is Star As Bantams Win

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Charlotte Bantams downed the Portsmouth Seawaves, 20 to 6, before 1,000 spectators in a professional football game here today.

With Pinkie Walden, former Mercer flash; Ed McIntosh, Johnny Branch and George Houston leading the way, the Bantams showed a nice running and passing attack and scored in the first, third and fourth periods.

The Seawaves could do little at advancing the ball, but put up a stubborn defense. Their touchdown came through a blocked punt. Van Dyke blocked the punt and Pendleton recovered on the Bantam one-yard stripe. Pittner bucked it over on the first play.

Travels 6,000 Miles.

At the close of the football season, the Auburn team will have traveled about 6,000 miles. Nine of its ten games were scheduled away from home.

Mexican Umpire Strikes Richbourg; Starts Fight

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 22.—(UP)—More than 40 police and gendarmes were required to break up a free-for-all fight today at the close of a baseball game in which the Atenea team, of Mexico, beat a barnstorming Nashville (Tenn.) team, composed largely of major leaguers, 2 to 0.

The melee started in the last inning when Lance Richbourg, captain of the barnstormers and formerly with the Boston Braves, disputed a decision at the home plate. He was struck in the face by the umpire, Senor Hernandez, a Cuban.

Tex Carleton, of the St. Louis Cardinals, rushed to Richbourg's aid. Members of the Atenea supported the umpire with their fists, and the fighting became general.

Police reserves broke up the battle and escorted the United States players from the park to their hotel. Several bore bruises but no one was injured.

Bryan, Plus Blocking, Alex's Perfect Play

The Good, Fast Halfback, Behind Interference Beats All the Theories.

By Jimmy Jones.

"Give me a good, fast halfback and some good blockers to clean up for him and you can have your fancy football theories."

It was just the other day that Coach Alexander of Georgia Tech delivered this utterance after reading and hearing of a current ramification in a national magazine dealing with the differences of two well-known creators of power plays. Those that said, "Give me a good, fast halfback and some good blockers to clean up for him and you can have your fancy football theories."

At any rate, the Tech coaches were careful to coach their punters all week in the importance of keeping their kicks away from Bryan's reach. Bobby Dodd put in endless time with Phillips, Martin and the others, showing them how to get off the low ones and the diagonal ones with plenty of roll on them. Bucky Bryan would get no high floating punt from Georgia Tech to grab on the fly and go galloping downfield like a frightened gazelle.

FOLLOWED ORDERS. Just how well Jack Phillips, who did most of Tech's kicking, followed these instructions, was seen Saturday. He kept them in the corners and they had roll to them, despite the "foggy" ball and the heavy field. Those that landed in front of Bryan were well covered by Tech's ends, too, Phillips knew that Bryan would expect to let the ball hit rather than taking a chance fielding them that close to the goal line on a wet day.

Only once did Bucky Bryan get a high kick and he made a touchdown on it. Dave Wilcox, Tech guard, who had a powerful toe, exploded it against the ball perfectly on that momentous kickoff that inaugurated the second half. Dave had not intended taking a chance with Bryan on that one. He was going to put it over the goal line, where it would be brought out to the 20. But it was not quite high enough and Bucky took it like an outfielder takes a line drive. He got excellent blocking on the run and Tech's tacklers were overlapped by the Tulane interference.

Mr. Alexander's statement about the good fast halfback with the blocking ahead of him being of more tangible importance than all the theories and the hypotheses came true right before his eyes.

IN THE BOOK.

Bucky Bryan's touchdown run will go in the record books with all the others made from behind the goal line this season.

And it made the New Orleans sports writers, particularly Mr. "Pie" DuFour, of the Item-Tribune, look very good.

"Kick it to Bucky Bryan!" Mr. DuFour yelled as Dave Wilcox let drive at the ball, teed, up there on the 40-yard line. It went spinning through the murky air straight into Bucky Bryan's arms. And when Bryan stepped off the 101 yards with it and brought himself up in an exultant cant, behind Tech's goal line every one looked around to have a look at Magician DuFour.

Incidentally, "Pie" DuFour delights in sitting in the press box and calling plays or plausible plays before they reach their inception. At Athens two weeks ago, he was calling all the quick-kicks on both sides. He also likes to trick plays. Sometimes he misses and often he hits.

At any rate, he must have some gift of the divine.

TRAVELS 6,000 MILES.

At the close of the football season, the Auburn team will have traveled about 6,000 miles. Nine of its ten games were scheduled away from home.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES FEATURE PLAY SATURDAY

Tech Engages North Carolina and Florida Faces Tennessee.

By Jack Troy.

As Southeastern conference football teams prepare for the final week of October's hectic offensive, the unbeaten and untied teams can be counted on the fingers of one hand with the index finger and the thumb, of course, waived.

Since it is customary among the fair sex to indulge in finger waves at the beauty parlors, why not indulge in a little game of waving fingers? This has been a deuces wild campaign to date, with everything going. Form sheets have been as futile as an usher's efforts to keep "One-Eye" Connelly out of the fifty-yard line seats.

Overnight Alabama has bounced back into the Southeastern conference race and Tennessee has walked wearily over the hill to the poor house of thwarted championship hopes.

ONE TEAM.

There is only one team in the Southeastern conference that hasn't been beaten or tied by anybody this season. And that is Georgia. Kentucky leads the Southeastern, but Washington and Lee, of the Southern conference, holds a victory over the Wildcats. Florida has been out of the side of the conference, as has L. S. U., which hasn't played a conference game as yet. Alabama has been tied by Ole Miss. Roll on, Ole Mississippi, roll on!

On the basis of performances, which is of practically no use anymore, Georgia, Alabama and Florida are doing first rate and have a chance to glimpse the throne room. Well, maybe not at all three, at that. Because Georgia and Florida meet in a couple of weeks and one of the two will pass on the picture. Kentucky, on the other hand, is still unbeaten in the Southeastern and has two victories to insure a present lead.

It will take more than a crystal ball and the usual headache powders to divine what the situation will be by, say, the middle of November.

VOLS PUT OUT.

Tennessee's loss, second in two weeks, puts the Volunteers out of the running. Alabama came back with new-found coordination and win Saturday after making an unimpressive showing over Mississippi State in a game previous.

Intersectional games feature this week's program. Georgia, having won two and lost two in the series, meets New York University at Athens. The Bulldogs have a chance to take the edge.

Alabama goes east to play the Fordham Rams, coached by Sleepy Jim Crowley, former member of the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame. Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, was a quarterback at Notre Dame previously.

The Tennessee victory boosts the Crimson's stock in the Fordham game. Alabama has a great opportunity to add to its fine intersectional record of recent years which includes five victories and one tie.

KEY KEY, DUKE.

Notre Dame Pitt Out of Race

TROJANS TIED ON SAME DAY; ALABAMA RISES

Mighty Triumvirate Is Crushed as 'Underdogs' Have Their Day.

By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The shock of seeing Pitt and Notre Dame beaten and Southern California tied on the same day left football experts babbling incoherently today when they were talking about Michigan's third smashing victory in succession and the rise of Princeton in the east and Alabama in the south.

The mighty triumvirate of the Panther, Rambler and Trojan, year in and year out, have been found close to or at the top of the gridiron heap but for Pitt and Notre Dame, at least, national championship visions were just that and nothing more.

Nothing the Panthers accomplish the rest of the season will wipe out the 7-3 beating they took from Minnesota's powerful Gophers at Minneapolis, nor will an already unimpressive Notre Dame outfit be able to offset the 7-0 reverse the Ramblers suffered at the hands of Howard Harpers' Carnegie Tech Tartans at Pittsburgh.

Both Minnesota and Carnegie Tech took advantage of one scoring opportunity and then held off all rival threats. Minnesota scored in the first eight minutes when Tenner took the pass and dashed 49 yards across the goal line. After that the Panthers had a slight advantage but Weinstock's field goal was the only Pittsburgh score.

SWIFT STROKE. Carnegie struck even more swiftly on the third play of the game, Beveno passed to Libbus Lewis for a touchdown and a clumsy Notre Dame offense never could get going far enough to equalize.

Although saved from defeat, Southern California's scoreless tie with Oregon State was the biggest surprise of the day. The Trojans outplayed the northerners by a wide margin, piled up 12 first downs against 1, yet could not break the Beaver defense.

Michigan, meanwhile, gave further indication of crushing power by shelling Ohio State, 13-0, before a crowd of 45,000 persons. Again, the great Michigan line was virtually impregnable and Ohio State's aerial attack proved a boomerang as the Wolverines intercepted five passes and outplayed their rivals all the way.

Princeton's sophomore came through their first major test with flying colors, trouncing Columbia's experienced array, 20-0, and just about offering conclusive proof that the Tiger is back to worry other eastern contenders for the first time in years.

Alabama looked like a class of the Southeastern conference as it invaded Knoxville and gave Tennessee its first home defeat since 1924, 12-6. Intercessionally, Duquesne defeated Pitt's defeat with Army's unexpected conquest of Illinois at Cleveland, 6-0; Carnegie's victory over Notre Dame, and lesser triumphs of Wake Forest, Navy, George Washington and Washington and Jefferson.

ARMY WINS. Army's light but speedy backs outplayed Illinois by a wide margin, although Joe Stancok's first-period touchdown, clinching a 55-yard march, was the only score that went into the record book.

Point winners for the Browns were Captain Suzanne First in the speed swim; D. Malone in the back stroke; S. First, front crawl; D. Malone, side stroke; and S. First and D. Malone in the breast stroke.

For the Greens, Captain Peggy placed in the side stroke, and B. Robinson in the front crawl.

In the high school event the Greens decisively defeated the Golds, 91 to 32. Point scorers for the Greens were B. Hoffman, won the 25-yard dash; B. Fugitt scored in the 25-yard dash.

In form swimming: E. Fugitt, first in back crawl; B. Hoffman, breast stroke; C. Galbraith, front crawl; M. Hunt, 15-yard event.

Team form swimming for the front crawl was won by B. Fugitt, C. Galbraith and L. Holliday for the Greens, J. Howell and C. Malone placed for the Golds.

B. Fugitt won the 25-yard crawl race. The glove relay was captured by the Gold team of A. Wilby, J. Howell, P. McGowan and M. Jameson.

The diving contest was won by C. Galbraith of the Green team. The Green team of B. Fugitt, H. Hoffman, L. Holliday and C. Galbraith won the 100-yard relay, free style.

Dont Terrell, of the Golds, won the 50-yard free style swim. C. Galbraith won the King Pigeon race for the Greens.

Junior high swimming banner was won by the Golds. High school swimming won by the Greens, diving medal by C. Galbraith and the swimming medals by Betty Fugitt and Charlotte Galbraith.

Bowdon College Beats Post Team A well coached Bowdon College team defeated Post Benning (post team) Friday afternoon, 6-0. The Bowdon Bulldogs fought furiously the entire 60 minutes of the game.

The Army was represented by 48 men in green jerseys and uniforms, and used all throughout the game. The soldier boys outplayed the Bulldogs 10 pounds to the man. Much praise should be bestowed upon the brilliant play of Massey, Bowdon center, who was in the thick of nearly every play.

Kintz, Bowdon quarter, was a consistent ground-gainer for the home team. George played an excellent game at right end.

Jones Seeks Revenge Against Speer Tuesday

John Paul Jones, the hook seissors king, will seek to wipe out a recent draw when he meets Frank Speer, the old Tech tackle, in the headline match of Tuesday night's wrestling program at the city auditorium.

Speer, whose appearance here have been pleasing to the crowd, battled the lanky Texan to a dogfight in their last meeting. Duquesne defeated Pitt's defeat with Army's unexpected conquest of Illinois at Cleveland, 6-0; Carnegie's victory over Notre Dame, and lesser triumphs of Wake Forest, Navy, George Washington and Washington and Jefferson.

Jones did not graduate from the boxing association's class of the Southeastern conference as it invaded Knoxville and gave Tennessee its first home defeat since 1924, 12-6. Intercessionally, Duquesne defeated Pitt's defeat with Army's unexpected conquest of Illinois at Cleveland, 6-0; Carnegie's victory over Notre Dame, and lesser triumphs of Wake Forest, Navy, George Washington and Washington and Jefferson.

Miller, Canzoneri Head Fight Card

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Fred Miller, holder of the National featherweight championship, and Tony Canzoneri, the former lightweight titleholder, are the headliners this week on a national boxing program which takes in a lot of bouts but very few of any great importance.

Miller is slated to face Jack Sharkey, of Minneapolis, in a 10-round scheduled to meet in the latter's home town Monday night. They share the honors of the card with Dick Sisk and Wes Ramsey in a double windup.

Canzoneri, who has won 13 fights, including a 13-round Southwest conference engagement, was tied Centaur, 0-0, and Southern Methodist played a 7-7 draw with Oklahoma A. & M. in non-conference tests.

In the south, Washington and Lee and Mississippi State stole the headlines that didn't go to Alabama. Washington and Lee overturned Kentucky's previously unbeaten Wildcats, 7-0, with a 98-yard march in the third quarter, while Mississippi State tied Vanderbilt, 7-7, and scored on the Commodores for the first time in history.

Like the Trojans, California found a northern Pacific rival plenty tough and was lucky to get a 6-6 draw with Washington. The feature pushed over two touchdowns in the final period to beat San Francisco, 20-13, and Washington had trouble with Puget Sound, 14-0. U. C. L. A. uncovered plenty of power in downing Loyola of Los Angeles, 20-6.

Colorado University dropped a 19-6 decision to the Colorado Aggies in the Rocky Mountain group where Brigham Young and Colorado Aggies also chalked up conference victories. Montana of the Pacific Coast conference beat Montana State of the Rocky Mountain, 32-0.

FANS INJURED. ROME, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Eight persons in the crowd of 70,000 who saw Primo Carnera beat Paulino Uzcudun in a heavyweight title fight today were injured slightly when a small section of the bleachers collapsed.

PLANKED STEAK, 50c Served at Peacock Alley. Outstanding food value. (adv.)

Ring Cards Promoter F. P. Owens will present his regular boxing card at the Howell Mill Road arena. The feature wrestling match will bring together Sergeant Harrison and Dutch Green. They are scheduled to meet in a two-out-of-three-falls affair.

In the semi-windup, John Dameron meets Red Dugan in a one-hour, two-out-of-three-falls match. The card will close with Owens in a 45-minute, two-out-of-three-falls opening match. The card will start promptly at 8:15 o'clock, with the usual popular prices prevailing.

Generals Return to Power With Victory Over Kentucky.

By Joseph E. Nettles. RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Washington and Lee's Generals, their ability attested to by a sterling 7-0 victory over Kentucky's Wildcats, loomed large today in the Southern conference championship picture.

Meanwhile Duke's Blue Devils who conquered Tennessee a week ago to earn a place in Dixie's football sun prepared for next Saturday's meeting with the Wildcats.

After withstanding the best that the Kentucky eleven could offer for two periods, the Generals started an impressive march in the third quarter yesterday that carried 93 yards for a touchdown.

SAWYERS STARS. Joe Sawyers, fleet of foot and elusive, started the fireworks with a 41-yard return of the kickoff and it was Sawyers who several minutes later sprinted the final 10 yards after taking a shovel pass. So well did his teammates block that the speedy halfback scored standing up.

While Washington and Lee stole the show with its magnificent performance there was glory to spare for a battling University of Virginia eleven that bowed to Navy, 13 to 7, after outplaying the Midgies in most of the way, and for a determined Virginia Military team that scored a 19-13 victory over Maryland.

The content with a 19-7 victory, North Carolina lost to Florida, 9 to 0, and Wake Forest's demon Deacons held N. C. State to a scoreless tie. Virginia Tech packed its punch in a brilliant future. But he must prove his ability Tuesday night. And John Paul Jones is more than a testing block.

Matchmaker Henry Weber plans to use Dick Lever, the French-Canadian, against some opponent not yet matched, in the semi-windup.

B. Fugitt scored in the 25-yard dash. In form swimming: E. Fugitt, first in back crawl; B. Hoffman, breast stroke; C. Galbraith, front crawl; M. Hunt, 15-yard event.

Team form swimming for the front crawl was won by B. Fugitt, C. Galbraith and L. Holliday for the Greens, J. Howell and C. Malone placed for the Golds.

B. Fugitt won the 25-yard crawl race. The glove relay was captured by the Gold team of A. Wilby, J. Howell, P. McGowan and M. Jameson.

The diving contest was won by C. Galbraith of the Green team. The Green team of B. Fugitt, H. Hoffman, L. Holliday and C. Galbraith won the 100-yard relay, free style.

Dont Terrell, of the Golds, won the 50-yard free style swim. C. Galbraith won the King Pigeon race for the Greens.

Junior high swimming banner was won by the Golds. High school swimming won by the Greens, diving medal by C. Galbraith and the swimming medals by Betty Fugitt and Charlotte Galbraith.

Bowdon College Beats Post Team A well coached Bowdon College team defeated Post Benning (post team) Friday afternoon, 6-0. The Bowdon Bulldogs fought furiously the entire 60 minutes of the game.

The Army was represented by 48 men in green jerseys and uniforms, and used all throughout the game. The soldier boys outplayed the Bulldogs 10 pounds to the man. Much praise should be bestowed upon the brilliant play of Massey, Bowdon center, who was in the thick of nearly every play.

Kintz, Bowdon quarter, was a consistent ground-gainer for the home team. George played an excellent game at right end.

Bowdon's lone touchdown was made possible by the ancient sleeper play in the last few minutes of play. Smith, Bowdon quarter, angled off to one side during a substitution and immediately sold out with the snap of the ball to race down the side line for Dickinson's long and accurate pass.

Smith ran on 33 yards for a touchdown.

Florida Halfback Dies From Wreck GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Robert J. Trenggold, 22, first-string University of Florida halfback and for two years a letter man, died in a hospital here today as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident last night.

PHILCO DISTRIBUTORS TO MEET HERE TODAY

Philco radio, battery and tube distributors of the southeast will meet at the Biltmore hotel this morning for a general discussion of sales and publicity plans for 1934. D. J. Mackillop, division manager, announced on Saturday.

The importance of the meeting is indicated in the attendance of high executives from the company's head office in Philadelphia. Those attending will be L. E. Gubb, general sales manager; S. M. Ramsdell, advertising manager; C. E. Carpenter, in charge of sales tubes, and John Gilligan, assistant sales manager.

Featured in the plans of the Philco Radio and Television Corporation is an extensive campaign of newspaper advertising. This and the merchandising plans for next year will be gone into fully by visiting executives with their southeastern distributors.

Culbertson on Contract

Bad Distribution BY ELY CULBERTSON. World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

There is no player in the world great enough to foresee and completely circumvent the difficulties that arise from bad distribution. When all the trumps are massed against you, in addition, suit break badly, you must make the best of a bad situation and try to go down as little as possible if you see that the contract cannot be made.

If the hands come up in duplicate, you must realize that everyone else will encounter this same bad break, and therefore you hold the penalty to a minimum you will still get a very good score on the board.

Committee To Begin Study On U. S. Tax Revisions Today

Revamping of Liquor Levies Also To Be Considered in Expectation of Prohibition Repeal.

By CECIL B. DICKSON.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A complete revision of the federal tax structure, embracing a tightening of the income tax law and a revamping of liquor levies in expectation of prohibition repeal, is the purpose of a study to get under way tomorrow before a house ways and means subcommittee.

The aim of the administration and congressional leaders is to work out a balanced program that will insure a steady flow of revenue into the treasury to meet the government's current expenses under any economic condition.

Besides planning to levy liquor taxes to bring in $500,000,000 a year in the event of repeal, the administration hopes that, on the basis of the findings, it will be possible for congress to plug loopholes in the income tax law and restore it to its former position of providing more than half the government's revenue.

In addition, the scope of the survey includes possibilities of removing several of the so-called nuisance taxes imposed in the billion-dollar revenue enacted in 1932.

Liquor Taxes To Be Studied.
The first phase of the study will deal with liquor taxes. Representative Sam Hill, democrat, Washington, predicted that the present rate of $1.10 a gallon on distillates will be increased to at least $2.60 with probable compensatory raises of levies on wines.

Administration estimates of a 150,000,000 gallon consumption the first year, with a tax of $2.60 would return $391,000,000, exclusive of the wine revenue, Hill observed.

Customs duties on imported liquors are expected to exceed $100,000,000. The present import tax is $5 a gallon. The study will recommend a reduction to possibly $3 a gallon to prevent domestic distillers from profiteering or from raising the price on the limited quantity of liquor available for consumption which, officials say, would permit the bootlegger to stay in business after repeal. At the same time, it is planned to keep the import levy high enough to protect domestic distillers.

In connection with the income tax, Hill said the survey would be confined to administrative features. Rates are to be left aside until the full committee opens hearings in December. In view of strong opposition in the house, the question of a general sales tax is not to be considered.

Information received by the senate committee investigating the stock market pertaining to avoidance of income tax payments by financiers through consolidations and reorganizations of corporations, is expected to help guide the committee in making its recommendations.

"The scope of the income tax study," Hill said, "will include administrative features of individual and corporate returns; consolidated corporate returns; capital gains and loss provisions; postponement of payments, credits and deductions now allowed for additions to income."

Experts To Be Summoned.
Treasury experts are to be summoned before the group in executive session to give their recommendations. Hill said it had been possible for wealthy men to avoid payment of taxes through various interpretations of the law's administrative features and add to the confusion.

"We are after a permanent, well-balanced tax structure that will bring in sufficient revenue to maintain the government credit under any economic condition."

"We hope to provide legislation that will avert the necessity of emergency revenue measures to meet unanticipated treasury deficits and to make each person contribute his proper share to the maintenance of the government. Hastily enacted tax measures often result in some unjust levies."

Hill pointed out that until the last three years individual and corporate income taxes ordinarily supplied more than half the treasury's total receipts. In 1932, however, they dropped to $1,057,000,000 compared with $1,860,000,000 in 1931. Despite the increase in income levies in the so-called billion-dollar revenue bill of 1932, reports from the treasury indicate that returns from income levies are little more than those of the 1932 rates.

Just before the armistice, the allies had expeditions in Siberia and about Archangel. The announced purpose: To protect military stores from looting and to aid Czech deserters from the Austrian army to reach Vladivostok safely.

The soviet declared the allied occupation of the Siberian railroad was a valuable aid to White Russian counter-revolutionary movements. Members of the soviet diplomatic and consular services gradually quit Russian soil. By the time the soviet expedition left Siberia, early in 1920, the American position of opposition to recognition of the soviet union had been moulded firmly.

The secretary of State, Bainbridge Colby, on August 20, 1920, set forth this policy officially.

Debts, Propaganda.
His note said the opposition was based principally on charges of repudiation of debts and the propaganda emanating from the communist central body of the third (communist) international in Moscow.

In the Harding administration, Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes was even stronger in this position.

Russia was one of the signers of the Kellogg-Brand pact to outlaw war. John Bassett Moore and other international observers contended this constituted a tacit recognition of Russia.

But the non-recognition policy held fast.

With the inauguration of President Roosevelt, the view was held in well-informed quarters that Russia would be recognized.

All the world powers had extended recognition by this time. The soviet position in international affairs was of the utmost prominence, politically and economically. They had negotiated numerous trade agreements and non-aggression pacts. Several European countries had granted guarantees on sales to the soviet.

When President Roosevelt sent his peace message last May to the nations of the world he communicated directly with Mikhail Kalinin, president of the soviet republic.

In June were two developments of great importance: The meeting of Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs, and American delegates at the London economic conference, and the approximate $44,500,000 loan from the R. F. C. for the purchase of cotton by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, Russian agency.

Negotiations progressed for a much larger R. F. C. credit. With the imminence of direct negotiations looking even toward recognition clearly indicated, Henry Morgenthau Jr., one of the closest advisors of the president—was placed in direct charge of all activities pertaining to Russia.

Then, on October 20, the president announced an exchange of letters with Kalinin. Litvinoff was delegated by the U. S. S. R. to come to Washington to negotiate personally with Mr. Roosevelt.

Text of Roosevelt's 'Third Report'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The following is the text of President Roosevelt's "Third Report" made tonight from the White House.

It is three months since I have talked with the people of this country about our national problems; during this period many things have happened, and I am glad to say that the major part of them have greatly helped the well-being of the average citizen.

In every step which your government is taking we are thinking in terms of the average of you—in the old words, "the greatest good to the greatest number"—we, as reasonable people cannot expect to bring definite benefits to every person or to every occupation or business.

In the same way no reasonable person can expect that in this short space of time, during which new machinery and new methods of production have been set up, that every locality in every one of the 48 states of the country could share equally and simultaneously in the trend to better times.

The whole picture, however—the average of the whole territory from coast to coast—the average of the whole population of 120,000,000 people—shows to any person willing to look—facts and action of which you and I can be proud.

FOURTH OF EMPLOYED NOW BACK AT WORK.
In the early spring of this year there were actually and proportionately more people out of work in this country than in any other nation in the world. Fair estimates showed 12 or 13 millions unemployed.

At that time, however, there were, of course, several millions who could be classed as normally unemployed—people who worked occasionally, or who preferred not to work at all. It seems, therefore, fair to say that there were about 10 millions of our citizens who earnestly, and in many cases hungeringly, were seeking work and could not get it.

Of these, in the short space of a few months, I am convinced that at least four millions have been employed—or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it.

This does not mean, my friends, that I am satisfied, or that you are satisfied that our work is ended. We have a long way to go but we are on the way.

How are we constructing the edifice of recovery—the temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of misery, but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater social justice, a greater welfare for America—the temple which will support that habitation, those columns are many in number, and though for a moment the progress of one column may disturb the progress on the pillar next to it, the work on all of them must proceed without let or hindrance.

RELIEF FROM HUNGER, FROM LOSS OF HOMES.
We all know that immediate relief for the unemployed was the first essential of such a structure and that is why I speak first of the fact that 300,000 young men have been given employment and that Archangel, the announced purpose: To protect military stores from looting and to aid Czech deserters from the Austrian army to reach Vladivostok safely.

Highlights of Accounting

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP) Following are sentences from the president's address:

"In the early spring of this year there were actually and proportionately more people out of work in this country than in any other nation in the world. Of these, I am convinced that 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it."

"We have a long way to go but we are on the way."

"How are we constructing the edifice of recovery—the temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of money changers or of beggars but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater social justice. We are building, stone by stone, the columns which will support the habitation."

"So, too, we have, as you know, expended greater sums in co-operation with states and localities for work relief and home relief than ever before—sums which during the coming winter cannot be lessened for the very simple reason that though several million people have gone back to work the necessities of those who have not obtained work is more severe than at this time last year."

"Another pillar in the making is the agricultural adjustment administration. The problem we seek to solve had been steadily getting worse for 20 years, but during the last six months we have made more rapid progress than any nation has ever made in a like period of time. It is true that in July, farm commodity prices had been pushed up higher than they are today, but that push came in part from pure speculation by people who could not tell the difference between wheat and rye—people who have no real interest in the farmer and his problems."

"I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable that, although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit. If we cannot do this one way, we will do it another. Do it, we will."

"I repeat, that ever since last March the definite policy of the government has been gradually to restore a balance in the price structure so that farmers may exchange their products for the products of industry on a fair exchange basis. It has been and is also the purpose to prevent prices from rising beyond the point necessary to attain these ends."

"Some people are putting the cart before the horse. They want a permanent revaluation of the dollar first. It is the government's policy to restore the price-level first. . . . To guess at a permanent gold valuation now would certainly require later changes caused by later facts."

"When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation."

"Because of conditions in this country and because of events beyond our control in other parts of the world, it becomes increasingly important to develop and apply the further measures which may be necessary from time to time to control the gold value of our dollar at home."

"Government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level."

Sections are not better off than they were a year ago. This applies among the major products, especially to cattle and the dairy industry. We are going after those problems as fast as we can.

I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable that, although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit. If we cannot do this one way, we will do it another. Do it, we will."

Standing behind the pillar of the farm—the A. A. A.—is the pillar of industry, the NRA. It is the pillar of industry and business workers into employment and to increase their purchasing power through increased wages.

It has abolished child labor. It has eliminated the sweat shop. It has ended 60 cents a week paid in some mines. The measure of the growth of this pillar lies in the total figure of re-employment which I have already given you and in the fact that re-employment is continuing and not stopping. The success of NRA is co-operation has been voluntarily given through the signing of the blanket codes and through the signing of specific codes which have as yet included all of the greater industries of the nation.

In the vast majority of cases, in the vast majority of localities—the NRA has been a great success. That is the measure. We know that of every case of criticism and obstruction, some private axe to grind. Ninety per cent of complaints come from misconception. For example, if our trouble will not be over tomorrow, but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction.

public works. Of course, NRA has nothing whatsoever to do with the price of farm products or with public works. It has to do only with industrial organization for economic planning to wipe out unfair practices and to create re-employment. Even in the field of business and industry, NRA does not apply to the rural communities or to towns of under 2,500 population, except in so far as those towns contain factories or chain stores or chain stores which come under a specific code.

Let Us Sell Gold To Regulate Prices.
As a further effective means to this end, I am going to establish a government market for gold in the United States. Therefore, under the clearly defined authority of existing law, I am authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to sell gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time after consultation with the secretary of the treasury and the president. Whenever necessary to the end in view, we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market.

My aim in taking this step is to establish and maintain continuous control. This is a policy and not an expedient. It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency.

Let Us Do Best.
I will recall the dire predictions made last spring by those who said that the common policies of raising prices by direct means. What actually happened stood out in sharp contrast with those predictions. The measure of the rise in prices has risen in part. Doubtless prophets of evil still exist in our midst. But government credit will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level.

I have told you tonight the story of our ready response to the call of our common recovery. In my promises to you, both before and after March 4, I made two things plain: First, that I pledged no more to you, and second, that would do my best.

I thank you for your patience and your faith. Our troubles will not be over tomorrow, but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGES MANAGED CURRENCY

Announces Creation of Government Market for Gold.

Credit To Be Maintained.
"Government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level."

Mr. Roosevelt authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to sell gold newly mined in the United States "at prices to be determined from time to time after consultation with the secretary of the treasury and the president."

"Our troubles will not be over tomorrow," the president said after an exhaustive review of his program; "but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

"Obviously, and because hundreds of different kinds of crops and industrial occupations in the huge territory that makes up this nation are involved, we cannot reach the goal in a few months. We may take one year or two years or three years."

Citing accomplishments, the president told the people that unemployment has been reduced by 40 per cent since the reemployment of 4,000,000 people; that the average farmer will receive one-third more money for his crops this year than he did last year; that the government has no direct reference to the situation in the farm area, but he did say:

"I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable, that although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit."

"If we cannot do this one way we will do it another. Do it, we will. We have a long way to go but we are on the way."

Complaining of the susceptibility of the American dollar to international fluctuations, Mr. Roosevelt in his address from the White House emphasized that "the United States must take firmly into its own hands the control of the value of our dollar."

"It is necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging us away from our ultimate goal, namely the continued recovery of our commodity prices."

The government controlled plan for purchase of newly-mined gold and sale or purchase of gold in the world market were named as moves in this direction.

Defends NRA.
Strongly backing the national recovery administration, the president declared in the vast majority of localities—the NRA has been given support in criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interest, some private axe to grind."

"We know that there are chiselers," he said. "At the bottom of every case of criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interest, some private axe to grind."

He lashed out also at the "petty chiselers who seek to make undue profit on untrue statements" and reminded his hearers that the NRA is not a part of the government's policy to restore the price-level first. . . . To guess at a permanent gold valuation now would certainly require later changes caused by later facts."

When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation."

Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., entertained at a brilliant reception last Friday afternoon at the chapter house on Juniper street, in compliment to Mrs. William E. R. Byrne, of Charleston, W. Va., president general of the U. D. C., and Mrs. W. E. Beckham, of Athens, newly elected president of the Georgia division, U. D. C. Mrs. R. B. Broyles, of Alabama, third vice president general, Mrs. Frank A. Dennis, of Easton, Ga., newly elected first vice president, Georgia division; Mrs. Frank E. Matthews, second vice president, Georgia division; Mrs. J. Lawrence McCord, first vice president, of Atlanta chapter and newly elected editor, Georgia division; Mrs. J. H. Sutton, of Clarksville, treasurer of Georgia division.

In the spacious assembly room, where the receiving line stood, were several trophies, banners and silver cups won by the Atlanta chapter. Throughout the house were flags and emblems of the Confederacy, and the many portraits of Confederate leaders, the auto-bellum of the chapter, a southern relic that have been collected for the chapter under the leadership of Mrs. John A. Perdue, curator, held the entire reception. In the receiving line were the president of the chapter, Mrs. R. B. Colcord; guests of honor, and officers of the chapter, including Mesdames J. L. McCord, Moreland Speer, J. N. Bateman, Otis Poundstone, Slaughter Linthicum, Marshall Holsenbeck, Alva D. Kiser, Frank Thompson, Fort Knicker, Harvie Jordan, A. McD. Wilson; the honorary state president, Mrs. John A. Perdue and Mrs. Walter S. Coleman, and the presidents of the chapter, Mesdames T. T. Stevens, Stafford Seydel and Warren D. White. Mrs. Broyles was wearing a black lace. Mrs. Byrne wore a gown of satin silk with a black turban, and Mrs. Reed was in blue lace. Bouquets of Sweetheart roses, sent by members of the chapter to their president and honor guests, completed their costumes. Members of the executive board assisted with the entertainment of the guests. Mrs. W. E. Beckham and Mrs. Henry Baker, both members of the executive board, presided over the coffee and tea tables. Members of the Atlanta chapter, Fulton chapter, Rebecca Felton chapter, Crawford W. Long chapter, Robert E. Lee chapter and the Agnes Lee chapter, were invited to meet the distinguished visitors.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, who is now a prominent clubwoman of Miami, Fla., and a former president of the Atlanta chapter during the World War, was a guest at the reception and received a cordial welcome from her friends.

Dinner Party. The Atlanta chapter entertained at dinner at the Georgian Terrace Friday evening in honor of the distinguished guests. Mrs. Colcord acted as hostess. The guests included Mrs. Byrne and Mrs. Broyles, national officers; Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. McCord; the Georgia division, Mrs. Perdue and Mrs. W. S. Coleman; Mrs. R. B. Rambo, regent of Joseph R. Hershman chapter, A. R. W. B. Warren White, past president of Atlanta chapter and state officer of Service Star Legion, and Mrs. T. T. Stevens, past third vice president general and former president of Atlanta chapter.

Dinner was served in a private dining room at the Georgian Terrace, where the site is an old southern landmark, having been the home of the late Colonel and Mrs. Livingston Stanley. Mrs. Broyles were at the Georgian Terrace as guests of the Atlanta chapter.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I have a good husband but I am in love with another man. Unfortunately he is married. I have never confessed my love for him but when I see him my heart literally jumps up my throat. I have been a good wife to my husband and he has done everything he could to make me happy. It seems so that when I see the face of the man I love this thing should happen to me. But when love comes in your heart, can you help it? Are you to blame? The love I feel is true. Who should be the perpetrator? Somebody has to pay. LOUISE.

Answer: Hard questions. Questions that have been asked thousands of times by trapped men and women. Let's answer the last one first because it is the easiest. Somebody certainly has to pay and it shouldn't be the good husband who has done everything he could to make his wife happy. It shouldn't be the innocent wife of the married man of whom you haven't spoken. By elimination, then the person or persons that must pay are the ones that have "happened by accident," or the ones that have deliberately put themselves in the way of danger. They are the ones that should pay. But you know who does pay; all that are bound up together by ties of blood, love and marriage. Both husbands, both wives, and the children of both marriages. This is one of the cruellest and most inexorable laws of nature: That we suffer for and with those near us, regardless of our innocence in the affairs that distress them.

Now as to the question of whether or not one is to blame when an illicit love comes into one's heart, the answer depends entirely on what is meant by love. Love is not something that springs up overnight, fully developed. It grows by slow stages and it cannot grow unless it is led and tended carefully. So one might be entirely blameless in experiencing a strong attraction toward another yet guilty in blowing that spark of attraction into a flame and the flame into a furnace fire. An English philosopher is quoted as saying that there is no voice of conscience telling one that it is wrong to love, but only a voice of custom. According to either standard, a married woman finding herself in love with a married man is condemned.

Since the beginning of recorded history this tragedy has happened again and in a certain old writing that calls a spade a spade, there is another word substituted for love, an ugly word, too. Because of this emotion in powerful light once had a man killed so he could take his wife. He spent the rest of his life repenting his evil deed. In more modern times men and women have killed husbands and wives for the same purpose and many of them have repented in the electric chair. Are they to blame? The courts say they are. Public opinion says they are.

The answer to the third question is, like the second, dependent on what is meant by love. One may not be able to keep love out of the heart, but one can stifle it once it enters. A refusal to acknowledge, even to oneself, that it exists is the best way, for then one cannot confess it to any other. A resolute refusal to give expression to any thought will kill it eventually.

Close the account immediately that you are now opening with this married man and the price you will now pay of heartache and misery is nothing as compared to the price you will pay later on if you don't close it; humiliations for yourself and your husband, the wrecking of two homes, the unclean feeling of having cheated a good man who was your lawful husband; one who did everything he could to make you happy. The discount you will get for closing the account today will be larger than any other discount you ever secured.

Whiteford Garden Club Holds Flower Show November 2

Interest of flower lovers centers in the announcement of the rules and classifications for the Whiteford Garden Club flower show which will be held on Thursday, November 2. Any member of the club may exhibit, providing the flowers or plants have been grown in her own garden. Entries may be made from 9 until 12 o'clock. Only one entry in each division of a class will be accepted from an exhibitor. A sweepstakes prize will be awarded for the most outstanding exhibit in the show and the winner will be presented the Floyd Bradley trophy. Entries will not be removed until 8 o'clock in the evening.

There will be classes for roses in all colors and varieties, for annuals including zinnias, marigolds, verbena, cosmos, petunias and other annuals. In the perennials entries there will be a class for one variety of one color, and for two or more varieties of any color. Miniature arrangements in bowls will be displayed and exhibits in baskets, the flowers to range in height from less than 12 inches through 18 inches. Additional displays in vases will be made and tiny flowers less than six inches will be shown. Artistic arrangements will include combinations of green and white, red and white, pink and white, blue and yellow and white. There will be an unclassified class and overalls, and novelties.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Henry Hume, Sue Santry's New York employer, goes to Paris on business and takes her along to help his secretary, Mathilda Fetherstone. Held closely to their work, Sue and Mathilda are in the brilliant French capital two months but see nothing of it, and Sue is in a rebellious mood when they leave for home. She falls asleep in her deck chair the first evening on the liner Toulon and when she awakes the ship is being tossed in a heavy storm. As she makes a dash for shelter, the ship pitches and she is going over the rail when Jeffrey Randall grasps her ankle, which is badly wrenched. Though he saved her life, Sue is distrustful of this young man of wealth. In Jeffrey's presence, Mrs. Hume confronts Sue and accuses her of being with her husband in Paris. Jeffrey assures Sue he does not believe the woman's accusations and that evening, on the moonlit deck, asks her to marry him. He does not even take her hand as he tells her that in seven days he will be 27 years old and if he is not married then, he loses the Randall fortune under the will of his bachelor uncle, Oswald (Grady) Randall. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI.

"So you backed, and uncle changed his will."

"Exactly. The old tyrant hated being crossed. He got it into his head I was going to remain a bachelor, just to annoy him. So he shot tradition and decreed that unless I married on or before my 27th birthday, the Randall estate should go to Bea and her brother Cyril. Fine pair, Bea and 'Sil.' If you care for blighters."

"I can understand how you feel. It is bad enough never to have had money to do the things one wants to do. But to have had money—and then to lose it—that would be real wretchedness."

"Perhaps." Jeffrey lit a cigarette, cupping the flare in his hands so that it made of his face a mask of light against the darkness. The boyishness might have shown that stony curve of jaw, that cleft of determination between the eyes, when he changed the Randall will. "I'm willing to take a chance on keeping myself out of bread lines," Jeffrey went on. "So far as my use of it is concerned, Bea and Sil. will have the money and welcome. But I'm not sure I have the right to toss it away. It's honest money. Earned money. It's been used wisely, to benefit the many, not to satisfy the appetites of the few. When I think of the good that money can be made to do, and what it will do if it falls into the hands of Bea and Sil. I know I've got to beat them to the wire. I've got to turn up at the end of this voyage with a wife."

"I see," Sue drew the blanket up to her shoulders and huddled back into the chair. "You want me to break the family fortune. You've put off the unwelcome necessity of marriage so long that the day of reckoning is at hand, and you've got to plunge, even though you plunge with a stranger."

"You put it pretty starkly," Jeffrey ground out his cigaret under his heel. "I don't feel you are a stranger, Sue. I haven't felt so, since the moment I saw you on the boat train."

"Thanks. That does make your proposal a little less blunt. I don't know what to say. You see, I've never engaged in big business, except as part of the machine that puts it over. It all sounds rather grotesque."

"It must. However, you're hit on the right angle. Regard it as a business proposition. A partnership in which you are to share, handsomely in the profits."

There was a throb in Sue's throat. Over on the horizon Sue watched the moon dipping water with her silver-ver-gilt cup. Stars were cathedral candles, blinking, winking. One of them toppled from its deep-blue altar, describing an arc of flame down the sky. A mischievous wind explored the Toulon's top deck with frosty fingers.

Love was a passion for the gods to play with. A high star burning in a far sky. Humans reached for the star, even touched it, a few of them, with the tips of eager fingers, but they could not hold to its incandescent light. It burned them out, left their hearts in ashes.

Marriage for love? A jumble of words. Jeffrey knew better than to reach for the stars of the gods. He was not interested in a treasure hunt for love. He was interested in a treasure hunt for gold. He knew where the treasure was. Sue had asked her to share the hunt.

"I'm afraid you're reaching the desperate stage," Sue said coolly. "You haven't taken the trouble to look into the background and the character of the partner you've invited into the firm. It wouldn't be fair to consider your offer until you know more about me."

"I know enough," Jeffrey replaced an edge of the blanket, which had blown back. "I'm not interested in backgrounds and I make my own character sketches. I'm interested in you."

"Porting of you. I'm afraid, though, you'll have to tune in on my broadcast. Better to be cautious than to be sorry."

"Don't you think we might postpone the broadcast until tomorrow?" Jeffrey asked gently. "I don't want to tire you."

"I'm not tired, in the least," Sue replied. "The material is pretty dull, but I'd rather get it put in the record tonight. I'll try to put it in tabloid form so it won't bore you too much."

"Anything having to do with you couldn't bore me, possibly. It isn't that I don't want to know about you, Sue, to know you, completely. But I would like you to understand that who you are, what you are, so long as you are free to marry me, can have no influence on any bargain we might make."

"You're generous, and a daring gambler," Sue, wondering where, how to begin. This must be brief, frank, revealing. This was a business deal, not a mental adventure. Jeffrey had not so much as hinted at the word love. Her eyes were suddenly hot with tears. Tears for what? For love, swinging up there in the far sky, shining, unattainable, but if he would have to stop confusing her treasures. Gold was offered, human treasure, not the treasure of the gods, as matter of fact as though she were reciting a legal transcript. "Good health, sound teeth, fairly strong body—"

"That's all," Jeffrey half rose. "I thought you understood."

"Excuse," Sue reached out a detaining hand. "I do understand—of a moment I lost my selling line. I forgot it is not Sue Santry who is sought, but what Sue Santry might be able to represent."

"I'd better turn you in to Mathilda. It's been a long day for a partial patient."

"You're annoyed with me. Rightly so. You've made me a very good offer, Jeff, and I'm acting the ingrate. How much the offer might mean to me you will understand when I tell you my story. My father is dead."

"A gift? But you don't even know him—Tommy. We couldn't possibly accept such a gift—money from a stranger on whom we have no claim."

"You would have a claim if—"

"If I were your wife? I've thought of that. I've decided, Jeff. Sue stretching out a hand to be clasped quickly, firmly, by Jeffrey. "I'm accepting your offer of marriage."

"Sue, you mean you'll see it through?"

Drennon & Zahn, Inc., Sounds Warning Against Faulty Brakes and Wheels

COMPANY URGES AUTO INSPECTION TO INSURE SAFETY

Correction of Major Ills Is Declared Important as Means of Curbing Accident Toll.

Citing the fact that October, November and December are the peak months in auto accidents records, Harry S. Holding, president of Drennon & Zahn, Inc., automotive specialists, 440 Marietta street, N. W., Saturday issued an appeal for increased brake and wheel safety.

"One of the leading concerns in this country on accident statistics," he states, "in its 1932 report stated that October is the leading month for automobile accidents, with November and December close behind. It is apparent, therefore, that these months are peak periods for the repair of wrecked and damaged cars, as in nearly all cases and alignment job is necessary for proper restoration."

This fact, he points out, is being graphically illustrated already by the increasing number of cars in recent weeks brought in following accidents, many of them caused by faulty brakes.

More than 4,000 accidents were recorded during 1932, he points out, in which more than 50 persons were killed and approximately 1,500 injured, many of the latter for life.

He further pointed out that during 1932 Atlanta led all cities of its size in deaths and injuries caused by automobile mishaps.

Automobile insurance rates, he points out, are from two to three times as high in Atlanta as in other cities of similar size, due to local conditions.

Faulty brakes and misaligned wheels, Mr. Holding declares, rank high among the causes of serious and many times fatal automobile accidents.

To eliminate these causes, Drennon & Zahn, Inc., offers complete Bear System service, which includes checking and alignment of steering gear, brakes and wheels, straightening of bent axles and correction of body faults.

Another feature of the service rendered by Drennon & Zahn, Inc., is that of spring adjustments. Cold weather, says Mr. Holding, is usually hard on springs, which break more easily during the winter months. The common cause of this condition, he states, is loose springs at the clips.

In this connection, he states, Drennon & Zahn, Inc., offers free inspection and tightening of clips, as well as expert advice on what is needed to put the springs in first class order.

Referring to the necessity for correct front axle and wheel alignment, he urges special attention to the importance of this factor during the fall and winter months, when wet and slippery streets are the rule.

As a further service to motorists, Drennon & Zahn, Inc., offers free radiator inspection in preparation for the approach of freezing weather, when alcohol must be used.

Drennon & Zahn, Inc., maintains a radiator and electric welding department fully equipped for all work of this nature, a completely equipped forge shop, and a wheel department where repairs on any type of wheel—wood, wire or disc—are handled.

In keeping with its motto: "Fenders, Springs and Other Things," they keep at all times a complete stock of Fostoria fenders, Rowland springs and Spiro running boards for retail and wholesale trade.

Steel Production Records Slump, Industry Looks to U. S. for Spur

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The steel industry is looking more to government support for a rally, the magazine Steel said today, "with steel work operations down six points to 34 per cent, apparently headed lower this week, and resumption of automotive buying on a large scale not in prospect for another month."

"Rail mills are understood to be submitting a price of $38, a concession of $2 a ton, for the $44,000 tons which Co-ordinator Eastman has assembled for distribution," the magazine's weekly review went on.

"Public works projects also are maturing more rapidly, and are regarded as another source of demand which may apply the brakes to diminishing steel production."

"The combination of labor troubles in the automotive industry, retarding new models, and the heavy stocking of material prior to October 15 temporarily has closed that outlet for steel. Sheet mills recently working to capacity to complete low price third-quarter contracts for the industry now are down to an average of one-third their former rate. October production of motor cars is falling below 150,000 units."

"Railroad buying is at the lowest point of the year, both as regards new material and equipment, a fact which leads some equipment builders to anticipate substantial purchases before the close of the year."

"Higher prices so far have meant little to the steel industry, as consumers generally are covered for the fourth quarter at the lower figures prevailing late last month and new orders are negligible."

"Nevertheless the trend of the market continued upward. Discounts on bolts, nuts and rivets have been reduced. Sheet piling is up $2 a ton. Warehouse prices, under the new basing system, are $3 to $10 a ton higher. Another increase of $3 a ton on steel bars is being considered, and tin plate makers are contemplating new schedules. In sharp contrast to this movement, scrap prices are easier."

"Steel's iron and steel composite is unchanged at $31.50, and the finished steel composite remains $49.20, while the scrap index is down 17 cents to $10.29."

"In practically all districts steel works' operations declined during the past week. In Cleveland the rate was down 13 points to 33 per cent; New England 13, to 32; Youngstown 6, to 51; Pittsburgh 5, to 35; Buffalo 5, to 24; Chicago 4, to 45; eastern Pennsylvania 3, to 23-1-2. In the Wheeling district operations advanced 2 points to 47 per cent; Detroit remained at 55 per cent, and Birmingham at 30."

COTTON ERRATIC DUE TO EFFECTS OF FOREIGN NEWS

German Withdrawal From League, Soviet Trade Hopes Cause Wide Fluctuations.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The cotton market during the past week alternated between periods of activity and comparative quiet. Price fluctuations were wide and rather nervous and erratic. The spread between extremes was as much as 78 points, with the lowest levels reached early in the week owing to uneasiness created by the withdrawal of Germany from the arms conference and war talk.

This early decline caused December to drop to 8.70, down 45 points from the closing level of the preceding Saturday. The decline was helped by weakness in stocks and grain. The market rallied during the middle of the week on the announcement that this country would hold aloof from all European complications and by the news from Washington to the effect that arrangements had been made to finance the advance of 10 cents a pound on the unsold balance of the present crop.

The market was further helped by reports of the existence of a strong holding movement in the interior due to the 10-cent advance and to the agitation in favor of pegging the price of cotton at 15 cents. Spot buyers found it difficult to obtain the cotton they wanted owing to the increasing scarcity of offerings. The demand for spots continued good from domestic mills and large spot traders but the export demand decreased owing to the unsettledness in Europe and the wider fluctuations in foreign exchange.

While there was some reaction late in the week, prices eventually improved owing to a recovery in stocks and wheat and the report that negotiations were in progress for the recognition of soviet Russia. Final prices showed a net gain compared with the close of the previous week of 8 points.

High, low and closing sales in the futures market during the past week compared with a year ago follow:

	High	Low	Close	Year Ago
Oct.	9.48	8.75	9.22	6.02
Nov.	9.48	8.75	9.22	6.14
Dec.	9.54	8.77	9.27	6.17
Jan.	9.68	8.94	9.40	6.53

COTTON FUTURES CLOSE
WEEK VIRTUALLY UNCHANGED
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Despite some wide and erratic price swings cotton futures ended the week virtually unchanged from the levels of October 14.

The staple continued to display a keen susceptibility to the trend in securities and grains, breaking and rallying in unison with those markets. Monday brought a high spot in selling prices, involving losses of $2 to $2.50 a bale. An equally abrupt recovery occurred on Tuesday, and for the remainder of the period the market moved haltingly in a generally narrow range.

Aside from its responsiveness to other markets, cotton in its sudden reversals of trend was evidently trying to interpret several highly conflicting developments having a more or less direct bearing on the position of the staple.

The trade viewed such factors as Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and disarmament conference, anxiety over the status of the French franc, agricultural disturbances and supposedly fading prospects of currency inflation as responsible for a considerable part of the week's selling.

Offsetting these influences, in part at least, in the opinion of market observers were the indications of a strong holding movement by farmers in anticipation of the government loan, reported purchases of the staple for government account and the possibility of recognition of the soviet government.

In spot cotton quarters it was reported that the week's spot sales in southern markets were in small volume for this time of year both by

'Caterpillar' Diesel Industrial Unit Found Economical for Planing and Milling Plant

Above is shown the huge "Caterpillar" Diesel industrial unit, installed in the combined planing mill and roller mill owned by F. Q. Sammon, at Lawrenceville. Mr. Sammon, who frequently employs the unit to operate two planers, a saw and his milling machinery simultaneously, reports his average day's operations' cost amounts to only about $1.65, giving ample proof of the economical value of this power unit.

Georgia industries rapidly are becoming Diesel-minded, and from widespread localities come expressions of amazement at the remarkable fuel economy which can be obtained from "Caterpillar" Diesel industrial units, according to Goodloe Yancey, president of Yancey Brothers, Inc. Diesel industrial units has been installed in the plant operated by F. Q. Sammon, at Lawrenceville, as shown above.

Mr. Sammon, who operates a planing mill in connection with his milling operations, asserts he finds the "Caterpillar" Diesel unit produces an abundance of power to operate not only the planing mill but the wheat and corn grinders. In this connection, he points out that two planers and saw are kept in operation, usually at the same time he is grinding corn or wheat.

Even with the heaviest timbers being dressed up or cut to length and the milling plant operating at capacity, he states, the "Caterpillar" Diesel industrial unit shows no evidence of slowing down or getting hot.

From countless users have come reports of eminent satisfaction with their efficient work, coupled with statements showing slashing of costs and naturally lower cost of production where economical power is required.

"It has power and plenty to handle the plant at maximum production at all times," he declares.

To give weight to his assertion, Mr. Sammon cites the fact that he has experienced unusual fuel economy, finding that the average cost of fuel for a 10-hour day, operating his entire plant, is only $1.65. He usually grinds 150 bushels of corn or approximately the same amount of wheat, and carries on his regular planing mill work at the same time.

The "Caterpillar" Diesel industrial units, manufactured by the Caterpillar Company, Peoria, Ill., are handled by Yancey Brothers, Inc., 634 Whitehall street, S. W., Atlanta.

From countless users have come reports of eminent satisfaction with their efficient work, coupled with statements showing slashing of costs and naturally lower cost of production where economical power is required.

"It has power and plenty to handle the plant at maximum production at all times," he declares.

To give weight to his assertion, Mr. Sammon cites the fact that he has experienced unusual fuel economy, finding that the average cost of fuel for a 10-hour day, operating his entire plant, is only $1.65. He usually grinds 150 bushels of corn or approximately the same amount of wheat, and carries on his regular planing mill work at the same time.

The "Caterpillar" Diesel industrial units, manufactured by the Caterpillar Company, Peoria, Ill., are handled by Yancey Brothers, Inc., 634 Whitehall street, S. W., Atlanta.

From countless users have come reports of eminent satisfaction with their efficient work, coupled with statements showing slashing of costs and naturally lower cost of production where economical power is required.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Information

CLOSING HOURS
Want ads are accepted up to 9 p. m. for publication the next day. The closing hour for the Sunday edition is 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED RATES
Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:
One time..... 30 cents
Three times..... 75 cents
Seven times..... 1.25
Minimum 15 words.
In estimating the space of an ad figure six average words to a line. Ads ordered for three or seven days and stopped before expiration will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made at the rate earned. Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

All want ads are restricted to their proper classification and the Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone or city directory on return charge only. No return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 43

When La awoke she thought, correctly, that perhaps Tarzan had gone to hunt, but still she was troubled by his absence, and the longer she waited the more troubled she became. She knew that he did not love her and that she must be a burden to him.

Realizing that she herself would think nothing of deserting a creature she did not love, La thought that Tarzan had done the same thing, nor to her mind did it change her conception of his nobility of character. It was the natural thing to do.

As she descended to the ground, she sought to determine some plan of action for the future. She realized the utter hopelessness of regaining the throne of Opar without outside help. La had no happy life to which she might look forward; but the will to live was strong.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

It occurred to her that perhaps there might be other people like Tarzan in the world. In Opar there was none, and so she turned her face away from Opar. Above her the storm king stalked his forces, and behind her a tawny beast slunk through the brush, on her trail!
